'Soak the People'
Austerity Plan Hit

LONDON (Reuters)—British newspapers today lashed out at Britain's new austerity program as inadequate, unfair and unimaginative.

Yuri Delays
Canada Visit

HALIFAX (CP)—The visit to Nova Scotia of Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin has been postponed until next week. An announcement today from the provincial government, said the first man to circle the world in space will spend Aug. 23 in this province.

He had been scheduled to come here Friday, July 28 as a guest of industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

An informed source said the postponement was made at the request of Soviet authorities to allow Gagarin time to visit Brazil before coming to Nova Scotia.

He now is in Cuba for celebration of the eighth anniversary of the Castroled revolution.

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Richards will resign as manager of Baltimore Orioles of the American League at the end of this season to become the general manager of the new Houston club of the National League. The Associated Press learned today.

Castro's Panama Plan

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York World Telegram said today it had learned that Fidel Castro agents in Panama had been seized in a plot to observe today's 26th of July anniversary by dynamiting the Panama Canal and the U.S. embassy there.

The newspaper said it learned from "highly reputable sources" in the United States and Panama that although most of the plotters have been arrested, the Canal Zone is on military alert status.

Most British newspapers were angry about the small-scale program put forth in the House of Commons Tuesday by treasury chief Selwyn Lloyd.

The plan boosted the bank rate from five to seven per cent, increased sales and excise taxes, tightened credit and cut back estimates of government spending.

The Times of London took a kinder view than most newspapers. It said Lloyd analyzed the situation correctly but failed to come up with a comprehensive plan to get the country back on the road to economic health.

FAILS IN WAGES

The Guardian of Manchester said Lloyd failed most notably in the area of wages.

Following Tuesday's budget and the one put forth last April, The Guardian said it would be "astonishing" to expect no demands for wage raises to be forthcoming.

"Once again there have been substantial tax concessions for the wealthy to be followed by tax increases and other burdens which fall on the less wealthy," The Guardian said.

The London Daily Mirror, which leans to the opposition Labor party, said Lloyd's measures "contribute nothing toward ending the real causes of our economic crisis."

The Financial Times said Lloyd's plan is confusing.

"It is not clear whether the

The FBI said Oquendo, who used the name Jose Marin when he purchased an Eastern Airlines ticket, was also a past member of the Cuba secret police.

Fulton Fouling
Talks—Bonner

Attorney General Robert Bonner today attacked Federal Justice Minister David Fulton for making what he called emotional and provocative statements about the Columbia River power scheme.

Mr. Bonner said the tone of Mr. Fulton's Vancouver press conference Tuesday was detrimental to private negotiations on financing the project between Premier Bennett and Federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming.

The attorney general first B.C. government spokesman to give a reaction to the Fulton conference. Also upheld the principle of selling power to the U.S.

Ottawa is flatly opposed to selling the downstream benefits from the Columbia Mr. Fulton said Tuesday.

Western Allies Applaud
Strong Kennedy StandBoosts Forces
But Offers
To Negotiate

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy has decided to sharpen and strengthen U.S. military forces with a request for an additional $3,247,000,000 defence outlay this year while calling on North Atlantic partners to increase their own fighting power to meet the possibility of a showdown over Berlin.

Congress
Promises
Fast Action

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy asked Congress today for authority to call up 250,000 ready reserves for a year of active duty and to extend draft terms, enlistments and all other military duty by 12 months.

The requested authority was contained in a series of messages in which Kennedy also asked for an additional $3.5 billion to build U.S. strength.

Democratic and Republican congressional leaders promised today to approve the program by next Tuesday as a show of united backing for a tough U.S. stand on Berlin.

Some lawmakers warned that the program to increase military forces and buy weapons would lead to higher taxes on all Americans.

But Republicans and Democrats alike hailed Kennedy's "fight-if-we-must" warning to the Russians that the west will not be forced out of Communist-encircled Berlin.

Senate Democratic whip Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., said the multi-billion-dollar request to build U.S. defences would be approved either Saturday or Monday.

At the same time, in a 30-minute broadcast Tuesday night, Kennedy hinted willingness to go to the summit with Soviet Premier Khrushchev to find some peaceful solution to the Berlin crisis—as long as the freedom of that Communist-encircled city is not compromised.

Expressing determination not to budge an inch in Berlin, Kennedy said he is willing to consider any arrangement or treaty in Germany "consistent with the maintenance of peace and freedom and with the legitimate security interests of all nations."

RECOGNIZE CONCERNS

"We recognize the Soviet Union's historical concerns about their security in central and eastern Europe, after a series of ravaging invasions, and we believe arrangements can be worked out which will help to meet those concerns and make it possible for both security and freedom to exist in this troubled area."

In short, while we are ready to defend our interests, we shall also be ready to search for peace—in quiet exploratory talks—in formal or informal meetings. We do not want military considerations to dominate the thinking of either East or West."

Saying "we do not want to fight—but we have fought before," Kennedy recalled that others have "made the same dangerous mistake of assuming that the West was too selfish and too soft and too divided to resist invasions of freedom in other lands."

He asked Congress for funds to increase the American 2,500,000-man active forces with an additional 217,000 men. This will bring the 14-division active army to 1,000,000 and will add 29,000 to the navy and 63,000 to the air force.

KEEP BOMBERS FLYING

Besides the draft call step-up a number of reserve transport and tactical air squadrons are to be made active. Bombers heading for mothballs are to be kept flying to make sure the United States has enough transport in the event that troops must be flown overseas in a hurry. Meanwhile LEOPOLDE (Reuters)—The Congolese parliament has re-elected a supporter of slain premier Patrice Lumumba as chairman of the Chamber of Deputies. It was announced today.

A United Nations spokesman made the announcement as he reported the parliament has held its "first effective meeting" electing its speakers and officers.

He said Joseph Kasonga, a leading member of the Lumumbist Movement National Congolais, was re-elected president of the Chamber of Deputies and Victor Komoriko was named president of the Senate.

'Excuse
To Justify
Arms Race'

MOSCOW (UPI)—The official Soviet Tass News Agency, in the first Russian comment on President Kennedy's speech today called it "an excuse to justify the arms race."

"The president chose in the first place the so-called 'threat to West Berlin' as a 'legitimate' excuse to justify the arms race," Tass said.

To support the Soviet charge that the United States started a new arms race, Tass quoted Kennedy as telling the American people: "The new preparations that we shall make to defend peace are part of the long-term build-up in our strength which has been under way since January."

Tass reported that Kennedy tried to ascribe the stepping up of U.S. military preparations as a reaction to the Soviet stand on Berlin and the increase in Moscow's military spending.

It added, however, that Kennedy "himself admitted that the United States itself started the build-up of its military strength much earlier—immediately after his inauguration as president."

Keep Talking
Says John D.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—It is essential that no nation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization acts on its own in the Berlin crisis, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said here today.

The prime minister said negotiations over Berlin must continue and that no avenue should be left unexplored.

"As a member of NATO, Canada feels the freedom of Berlin must be maintained," he said.

Referring to President Kennedy's proposal to increase the United States defence budget, he said Canada has always met its commitments and will continue to do so.

Defence Hike
Pleases Bonn

LONDON (CP)—The West today hailed President Kennedy's determined stand over Berlin in his address Tuesday night.

In Paris, official circles said they were glad the president combined his stiff warning to Russia with a declaration of readiness to talk over means to lessen world tension.

Government circles in Bonn were particularly happy about the president's proposals to increase American military manpower and military spending.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer expressed satisfaction with the speech before leaving Bonn by air for a 10-day holiday in Italy.

He told reporters at the airport "I welcome United States leadership."

The West German circles said the speech would undoubtedly increase a measure of uncertainty which they said has developed in Russia because of the firm allied stand on Berlin.

In The Hague, the Protestant newspaper Trouw in an editorial on the new defence expenditures said: "The freedom of West Berlin is also our freedom, and that must be worthwhile paying for."

SPEECH SERIOUS

The liberal Le Matin of Antwerp, Belgium, commented: "This speech means above all that the United States wants to fully assume its duties as leader of the Western World. Kennedy clearly expressed the American determination to take the diplomatic initiative back from the U.S.S.R."

The official Communist East German news agency, ADN, said Kennedy deliberately distorted Soviet proposals for relieving the Berlin tension.

ADN added: "He also failed totally to mention the danger to the peace of Europe posed by West German militarism."

From U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Britain today supported President Kennedy's stand on Berlin and Germany and warned the Soviet Union against moves which would inflame that problem further.

A government statement said Britain agreed with the United States that contingency steps must be taken by the Western powers "to face the critical situation which may arise" in divided Berlin.

The statement pointed out that Britain is having trouble financing her troops stationed in West Germany but intends to live up fully to her NATO obligations.

It noted that Kennedy spoke of the possibility of big power negotiations on Berlin and said the British government agrees with this approach "provided always that the Soviet government are ready to do this on a reasonable basis."

BERLIN (Reuters)—East German police have set up for the first time an internal traffic control point on the Hamburg-Berlin interzonal expressway, it was reported today.

NO 'JAMMING' OF SPEECH
BY RUSSIANS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Voice of America reported today there has been no Soviet "jamming" of its broadcasts of President Kennedy's Berlin speech in the English and Russian languages.

However, a spokesman noted that the Russians have "jammed" broadcasts of the message in other languages, particularly to Iron Curtain areas such as Latvia and Armenia.

Kennedy's speech was broadcast live to Europe, the Far East, South Asia and Latin America Tuesday night. It was rebroadcast an hour later by tape to Africa and the Near East.

Throughout today, news broadcasts in 34 foreign languages carried excerpts of his speech.

IRAQ TO TRY U.K. SOLDIERS

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters)—Iraq has decided to put three British soldiers on trial for entering the country from neighboring Kuwait.

Baghdad radio announced Tuesday night the three soldiers will be given a military trial for deliberately entering the Kuwait area of Iraq to commit "provocation and aggression."

Britain has asked Iraq to release the soldiers. Baghdad authorities said Tuesday the three men were being given "the best of treatment" and their release depended on normal diplomatic formalities.

The soldiers were among the British troops who flew into Kuwait at the start of this month at the request of the sheikh of Kuwait after Iraq claimed the oil-rich sheikhdom as an "integral part" of its territory.

The three men disappeared Sunday when on a lone patrol in a scout car near the Kuwait-Iraq border.

Heckled, Lloyd Defends 'Budget'

LONDON (CP)—Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd stood up in Parliament today to defend his new stretching line of more austere program and touched off a "bedlam of shouts from Opposition" Labor MPs demanding his resignation.

Smiling and unruffled, Lloyd outlined a long range plan for Britain, in which both the government and industry would participate.

The London Daily Herald, pro-Labor, blasted the program in a front page editorial headed "Disgraceful, disastrous."

The Daily Herald said the British people were prepared to make sacrifices but Lloyd's new budget "does not even make a pretence at equity."

"It is designed to soak the people and to do little more," the newspaper said. "At a time when imaginative, far-sighted measures were needed to improve our industrial efficiency, he has produced a string of near-sighted financial palliatives."

Lord Beaverbrook's right wing London Daily Express said the public would disapprove of a financial statement composed of "vague proposals, pious hopes, a continuing vast expenditure abroad and no fiscal measures against rich speculators."

The Edinburgh Scotsman said that Lloyd's budget simply would not bring stability to the economy and prosperity to the people.

Other firms refused to make a similar announcement.

Now Mr. McGavin announces the proposed increase is off indefinitely, or until bread goes up in Vancouver.

EDDIE LOOKED BORED

The 'Clan' Broke It Up

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Now let's all sing "God Bless America" loud enough for Khrushchev to hear.

Hollywood's clan—Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr. and Joey Bishop—interrupted and finally took over the Coconut Grove Tuesday night in the midst of singer Eddie Fisher's opening show.

Midway through Fisher's repertoire, most of which were sentimental ballads directed to his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, at ringside Sinatra and his clan shouted good-naturedly at the singer.

During the final song, "That Face," which Fisher sang to his wife, the clan members interrupted several times with noisy comments.

Dean Martin asked in a raucous voice: "What are you doing working here? If my wife had that face I'd be home with her."

Finally, Fisher gave up and said: "Okay you guys what do you want to do?" Without hesitating Sinatra and company piled on stage.

The overflow crowd was not amused as Fisher, supposedly the star of the evening, assumed a seat on the bandstand looking rather bored with the entire performance.

Not were clan members encouraged by a star-studded audience including John Wayne, Groucho Marx, Kirk Douglas, Danny Thomas, Natalie Wood, Robert Stack, Milton Berle and many others.

Last night's soiree was a charity event for Eddie Cantor, who discovered Eddie Fisher. The proceeds, $10,000, were given to Cantor's favorite charity, the Sunrise Camp for Children in New York.

The audience cheered when the whisky-toting clan members left the stage and Eddie said: "Elizabeth and I have just returned from Russia and no one could be happier to get back than we. I hope you all heard the president's speech tonight and we should let him know we're behind him."

POLICE USE TEAR GAS

Rhodesia Voting Marred by Riots

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Police used tear gas to disperse a large crowd of Negroes today as voters in this white British colony cast ballots on a proposed new constitution.

The clash came at the Negro township near Bulawayo, where a big crowd turned out to meet Joshua Nkomo, leader of the African National Democratic party which opposes the constitution and demands a faster vote for Negroes in the government.

The National Democratic party called for a general strike by Negro workers today to protest against the constitution but early indications were that it was an almost total failure.

The government threatened to quell any disturbances with a rod of iron. Troops and armored cars stood by in Negro townships and escorted buses packed with workers into the cities to their jobs.

The government issued an afternoon announcement saying 222 Negroes have been arrested since the weekend on charges of intimidation, obstructing police, refusing to disperse and other offences under the Law and Order Maintenance Act.

A total of 83,486 voters were eligible to cast "yes" or "no" ballots. But the Negroes, who outnumber the whites in this self-governing colony by about 16 to 1, had only some 4,000 eligible voters.

RICH HARVEST OF SALMON IN STRAIT

SEATTLE (AP)—American and Canadian fishermen reaped a $750,000 harvest of sockeye salmon in the Strait of Juan de Fuca and northern Puget Sound Monday.

In announcing the big catch Tuesday, the state department of fisheries said the run, chiefly Quesnel River stocks, is just getting under way.

The $75,000 fish caught Monday will bring $1,500,000 as a finished product, the department said.

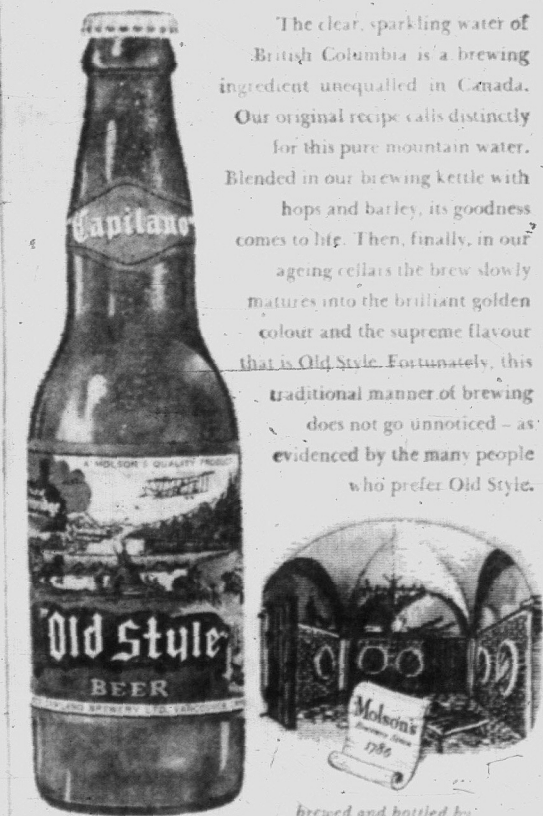

The Quesnel is part of the Fraser River system and a spokesman for the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission said the run indicates full rehabilitation of the Fraser sockeye runs now is approaching fulfillment.

Hijacked Passengers Well-Treated in Cuba

MIAMI (UPI)—The FBI today will charge a slim Latin gunman with theft of an aircraft, kidnapping, and assault in the hijacking of an Eastern Airlines passenger plane with 37 passengers and crewmen on board.

The federal agents said they would go before a U.S. commissioner to place the multiple charges in absentia against Jose Marin later today.

The plane's five crew members and 32 passengers returned here from Cuba yesterday aboard a Pan American World Airways plane. But Premier Fidel Castro kept the $3,500,000 Electra and Marin, effectively with theft of an aircraft in foreign commerce, kidnaping, and assault with a deadly weapon.

Many of the passengers who returned Tuesday were Cuban-born and brought with them boxes of cigars and bottles of rum purchased at the Jose Marin airport in Havana.

Mrs. William Conn of Coral Gables, Fla., said the American were "treated wonderfully" during their two-day stay in Cuba. "We didn't even have to pay for the hotel," she said. "It is just an experience you don't get every day."

The only person staying behind was Marin, who boarded the plane here Monday morning with a one-way ticket to Havana and gave a fictitious Miami address.

Some U.S. senators demanded that this country "go in and get" the confiscated turbo-prop airliner.

The Federal Aviation Agency conceded that pro-Castro agents were believed to have formed hijack teams of 28 men each to seize more American airliners and force the pilots to fly the planes to Havana.

U.K. Budget Won't Affect Canada Economy—Fleming

SASKATOON (CP)—Between treasury chief Sel position which lead to three finance Minister Fleming said Tuesday British crisis is the difficulties Britain has encountered in its economic recovery.

In the day would have no direct effect on the Canadian economy.

In a brief interview, the finance minister said the anticipated austerity measures aimed at bolstering the United Kingdom's faltering economy are still measures taken to protect the British pound in the face of great concern over rising costs and consequent loss of exports.

But he cautioned uncertainty about the effect of reducing British consumption of foreign goods. He was speaking specifically about United Kingdom purchases of wheat, raw materials and finished products from Canada which reached an all-time high last year.

He hoped if these measures result in contraction of consumption they won't affect Canada. Mr. Fleming said the austerity budget would have no effect on United Kingdom purchases of wheat from Canada but declined to speculate on its possible influence on the purchase of raw materials and particularly finished goods.

Mr. Fleming said he found it hard to see any connection between the British budget and the Canadian economy.

Drop in Spending To Cut Some Imports

OTTAWA (CP)—The British austerity budget is unlikely to have any significant impact on Canadian exports, trade observers here said Tuesday.

Only possible threat to the Canadian trading position contained in the budget was the 10 per cent increase in sales and excise taxes designed to lower consumer spending to the equivalent of $600,000,000 a year.

However, these taxes normally apply on a wide range of luxury goods which make up only a small portion of Canadian exports to Britain. About 75 per cent of Canadian exports are farm products and industrial raw materials.

Otherwise, the budget was interpreted here as an attempt to overcome balance-of-payments difficulties by reducing consumer spending and at which has been "thinned" by trading short-term capital.

13-YEAR-OLD ADDICT

They Take Drugs To Show Manhood

Vancouver youngsters have grown up yet, Dr. Halliday said. The city's addicts aren't hood, not by smoking and drinking as their fathers did, but by taking heroin. Dr. Robert Halliday, director of the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of B.C., said here Tuesday.

There are about 200 drug addicts under the age of 20 in Vancouver, Dr. Halliday told Victoria Kiwanis Club.

STARTED AT 13
Youngest addict he had met there was just 13 years old and had been an addict for two years, he said.

"There are somewhere between 1,500 and 2,000 drug addicts in the city of Vancouver," Dr. Halliday said. "The United Kingdom, with 50,000,000 people has about 300,000."

COST $10 MILLION
Total for Canada is about 5,000 or 6,000 while the United States has 60,000 drug addicts.

HIGHEST RATE
Vancouver has the highest rate of drug addiction for any city in the country, he said.

Likewise, it has the highest rate for all other "social ills" whatever your political views — alcoholism, juvenile delinquency, illegitimacy, suicide or divorce.

"It is a frontier town, not he said."

THREE DAILY

He defined an addict as a person who has a chronic or periodic need for a drug. He comes under a compulsion for it, develops a tolerance for it, and will eventually be physically and psychologically dependent upon it.

"The average Vancouver addict takes three capsules a day, costing $5 each," Dr. Halliday said. "To raise the money he has to steal between $45 and $50 of goods each day."

Spread over 300 addicts, that costs the city $10 million a year," he said.

"It is a very difficult and complex problem. We are only rate of drug addiction for any beginning to get some idea city in the country, he said."

Blackmail at Bizerte

THE INCIDENT OF BIZERTE is tragic enough in itself but is only part of a much larger problem. How is France to come to terms with the surging nationalism of North Africa?

President de Gaulle has shown extraordinary patience and his usual courage in attempting to solve that problem, to liquidate the war in Algeria, next door to Tunisia, and to staunch the long hemorrhage of French resources urgently needed in Europe. But at the very moment when he is hopefully negotiating with the Algerian nationalists the neighboring state of Tunisia, quite friendly in the past, chooses to break its agreements with France, to besiege the French naval base of Bizerte and thus to inflame the Arab world.

Like all the Western statesmen in high places, de Gaulle is at the mercy of accidents and adventures.

It remains to be seen what effects this affair will have on the delicate Algerian negotiations. They do not involve France alone. They involve the whole Western alliance, of which France is an essential pillar and a strategic necessity. And at this of all times the alliance requires maximum strength as it approaches the crisis of Berlin.

In any case, the decision of Tunisia to besiege Bizerte reveals the irresponsibility of its government. Such regimes seem to think that they have the right to break an international agreement because they are weak and the other party is strong. Repudiation is excused in the sacred name of self-determination and anti-colonialism, always with the implied threat of an appeal to Moscow.

De Gaulle refuses to be black-mailed in this fashion but it is by no means certain yet that France can retain its vital interests in northern Africa, including the newly-developed oil of the Sahara.

Meanwhile the drain of the Algerian war is more than France can endure indefinitely and it weakens the resources of NATO when they are most needed. Even if the towering figure of the French president can ride out this storm, no successor now in sight is likely to control it. Hence a durable settlement in northern Africa must be made, if possible, while de Gaulle is still in control of France.

He obviously knows that and has offered to the Algerian rebels terms that no other Frenchman could possibly offer and survive in politics. The attempt to hold all of Algeria by force has been abandoned as France, very late, follows the British policy of granting freedom to its colonies in the hope of retaining their friendship.

Can it be retained? There is no assurance of that yet nor, on the other hand, any assurance that such peoples as the Algerians will be any better off when French power is withdrawn. The illusion that political freedom automatically means economic welfare, and the assumption that every people in the world, however inexperienced, are well able to govern themselves have both been discredited by events in Africa and Asia during recent years.

By an ironic paradox the great nations of Europe and North America have found that they must achieve closer union, and sacrifice some elements of sovereignty, to that end while the new and weak states are generally asserting the opposite doctrine of absolute independence, though many of them cannot manage it and all seek the aid of the white man on whom they can blame all their troubles.

This is the curious stage of history in which we happen to live and it must work slowly toward its unknown end, always with great risks of a local incident expanding into a major war. Bizerte, we may be sure, is only one of such incidents to be faced during the next few years or decades.

The Escape Hatch

ONE OF MANY MYSTERIES IN Russian strategy is the illegal but actually free movement of refugees from East to West Germany through the escape hatch of Berlin.

Why do the Russian and East German governments thus permit thousands of refugees to advertise their discontent with life in a Communist state? Certainly the outflow could be halted, or at least greatly reduced, if the Communist authorities chose to act, but so far they have refrained. A refugee can reach freedom merely by crossing a Berlin street while the sentries look the other way.

This is particularly strange when the movement is draining out of East Germany many of its ablest professional men and technicians, badly needed there. On the other hand, Mr. Khrushchev and his puppet, Herr Ulbricht, anxious to remove dissatisfied folk who might make trouble for them later on, as in the uprising of June 17, 1953, in East Berlin?

The mystery remains. For their own reasons the Communist bosses, while protesting that everything is perfectly managed in their empire, allow the whole world to see that the more intelligent East Germans will take every risk and make every sacrifice for the chance to escape these blessings and live in a free society with all its hazards.

Saving Is Painful

MR. DAVID MORSE, DIRECTOR general of the International Labor Organization, suggests that in the newly developing countries the interests of the labor unions should be subordinated to national economic objectives. This statement at once raised the ire of Mr. Stanley Knowles, the distinguished Canadian labor leader and chief organizer of the marriage between the CCF and the labor unions.

"Are the developing countries," Mr. Knowles demands indignantly, "to go through the same stages of ruthless exploitation that marked the beginnings of the industrial revolution in some of our economically developed countries?"

What does Mr. Knowles really expect? Does he expect that somehow poor peoples, without capital to finance industrialization, can raise it without great sacrifice? Apart from foreign aid, such savings, the basis of industry and a rising standard of living can come from no one but the workers themselves.

As in the case of Russia and China, the workers must hold down their consumption of goods so that part of their production can be used for capital investment. Savings cannot be made otherwise in any country. The only question is how fast the process should proceed.

In the early days of the Russian revolution (against capitalism, by the way) the process was pressed so fast that millions of people starved though Russia was even then exporting food to earn foreign money for industrial investment. The same thing is happening in China now.

The necessity of saving, if a nation is to expand its industry, knows no ideological borders, is common to all systems and often involves, as Mr. Knowles says, some "ruthless exploitation" of labor.

The labor unions in the developing countries may temper these effects but cannot possibly prevent them if some production is not to be spent for consumption but saved, instead, for investment. And if the unions in such areas of poverty refuse to accept temporary sacrifices there will be no chance of permanent gains.

Happily we have passed that point in the Western world but Mr. Knowles' honest compassion will not alter the facts elsewhere. The creation of capital, which we often take for granted here, must be a painful business at the beginning, no matter how wise governments, or how strong labor unions may be,

Hard Heads Under Hard Hats

THE TRADE JOURNAL, CROWN Zellerbach News, tells its readers editorially that safety clothing "is the mark of the pro."

It advises them to look at the gridiron heroes, the big league baseball players, with their batting helmets, and the protective equipment used by many others in topflight athletics. The News argues that the same principle applies in industry. It is no longer smart or courageous to ignore use of hard hats or any of the other specialized apparel available for occupations where some physical hazards exist.

The people who need such protection may be active in a relatively restricted field. Not everybody needs the kind of armor the trade journal discusses.

But almost everybody drives an automobile.

Seen many new models with safety belts included as standard equipment lately?

ANIMALS AROUND US

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

Too Big to Walk and Toothless

THE largest animals ever to live on earth are whales and they are still with us though in reduced numbers. The largest whale is the blue or sulphur bottom, which may attain a length of well over 100 feet and a weight of more than 100 tons. While blue whales live to 80 feet in length have been taken off the west coast of Vancouver Island the average person never has a chance to see these large mammals since they range some distance off shore as a rule and they are relatively rare.

A more common species and one more likely to be sighted is the humpback, about 45 feet long and with the habit of coming into coastal waters including the Strait of Georgia. It may be recognized by the low back fin which gives the illusion of a hump and by the habit of raising the flukes above the surface of the water before sounding. Occasionally courting males will leap clear of the water at which time the long narrow flippers may be noticeable.

The whale most likely to be seen by local boaters and sports fishermen is the sharp-nosed fin, or minke. This is a small finback rarely exceeding 25 feet in length. It lives in the shallow coastal waters where it feeds on schools of herring and sand lance and other small fishes. Its small size and presence close to shore are usually enough to identify this whale, a good close-up look will also reveal a contrasting band of white across each flipper.

Several other kinds occur in our area, including the California grey whale, the common finback and the sei. The grey whale is the one that used to be taken by the Indians off the west coast because it is a regular migrant and comes close to shore. The finback and sei are commonly taken by commercial whalers and are highly prized because of their comparatively large size.

All these whales lack teeth, their place being taken by a straining device composed of a series of overlapping plates which hang from the roof of the mouth in such a way that small organisms taken into the mouth are trapped. The plates are the so-called "whale bone" of halibut once used widely for the manufacture of coat stays and buggy whips but now a waste by-product of whaling.

Of course a number of whale species do have teeth but most toothed whales are rather small in size and of no commercial interest. The only exception is the sperm or cachalot which may be 60 feet long and a good source of oil. Sperm whales used to be common residents of Georgia Strait but early whaling cleared out the local population, only an odd straggler wanders in nowadays.

The development of baleen plates was possibly the main factor in permitting toothless whales to attain their large size because it made available a relatively unexploited food source, immense quantities of small shrimps and other swarming creatures that abound in open water.

A secondary factor was the buoyancy of the sea itself. Only in water could creatures attain such large size unhampered by needs for mechanical support which are imposed on animals on land.

Touching a Chord of Hope

Manchester Guardian Weekly

WORLD Refugee Year, as we already knew, was a remarkable success story. Just how remarkable is brought out by the final statement of account.

The year raised over £35 millions in 97 countries of which over £9 millions, much the largest contribution, came from Britain. This was more than four times the target figure first set for this country.

The amount thus raised has brought forward by ten years the day on which European refugee camps can at last be closed. This is expected to happen two years from now. A running sore will have been stanchied; though it had already dwindled its disappearance will benefit Europe as well as the refugees themselves.

Some of the reasons for this success are well enough known, in particular the vigor, imagination, and enthusiasm of the many organizers. There remains something unexplained about what Lady Elliot rightly calls the near universal response the appeal called forth in Britain.

The amount given on average by every man, woman, and child 15 and over was not as high as Norway's 4s. 6d. or 3s. 6d. in a country like ours, where nineteenth-century industrialization still leaves some dark pockets that give in difference every excuse, is not the same thing as 3s. 6d. in sparse, hygienic Norway.

Perhaps one reason was that the appeal touched a chord of hope as well as fellow-feeling: it promised to solve one problem for good. It has not of course done away with the still worse problems of refugees in the Middle East, North Africa and Hong Kong, but then it was not meant to do that. What it set out to do it has done.

Preparing for Berlin Crunch

DEVISING a sensible specific plan for a crunch at Berlin was the top time-consuming task in these last few weeks. This was the crucial phase of the long, toilsome and anxious effort to chart a course for the Berlin crisis.

This simple central fact puts all the other, superficially puzzling facts already known about the planning effort into intelligible perspective. For example, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Lyman Lemnitzer, seem to be going abroad to do a job that could just as well be done by telegram.

But their mission is really not to explain that defense appropriations will be increased by more than $3 billion and that conventional forces will be substantially built up by various devices including a major buildup of manpower later on, and so forth, and so forth. Their mission is primarily to deal with the heart of the matter, to explain and secure agreement on the military plan that has been devised.

The nature of this plan is completely unknown, and should remain unknown. But the kind of plan it was designed to replace is unknown, and deserves to be known.

Nuclear Frivolity

The plan truth is that the fat, purblind years of complacency had reduced the Pentagon to what can only be described as a state of nuclear frivolity. For budgetary reasons the conventional forces had been allowed to decay disastrously. Hence the nuclear weapons had come to be regarded, not as a last resort, which they most emphatically still are, but as a sole military remedy, which they ought never to be.

The degree of frivolity and political uneasiness resulting from this attitude can be judged by an actual scheme that was proposed to the President by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He turned it down with considerable indignation.

If this scheme had been adopted, the first response to a crunch at Berlin would have been to send a few trucks down the Autobahn from Helmstedt. It was then provided that if these six or seven trucks were halted by the East Germans, the Strategic Air Command was to be automatically ordered to deliver an atomic bomb attack. And that was to be that.

The new phrase for this kind of planning is "self-deterrence," meaning total reliance on plans of such a character that they would never be carried out by any non-paranoid national leader. There is some excuse for this kind of planning in the geographical and tactical limitations of the Berlin position. But it is still frivolous planning.

Fortunately, one of the services of the late John Foster Dulles was to prove the value and effectiveness of a very different approach. The proof was provided by the American response to the Russian challenge to the 1958 challenge at Quemoy, where the position so "closely" resembles the position at Berlin.

The essence of the Quemoy crisis is still little understood. But what really happened on the offshore islands in those breathless weeks of the summer of 1958 was a prolonged test of will with unreal or conventional weapons.

Unused But Effective

During those weeks, the real weapons of modern war, the thermo-nuclear weapons, remained unused in their storage places at great distances from the point of contact. But they controlled the outcome. The test of will finally convinced the Kremlin that the U.S. meant business, and that there was a genuine danger that the real weapons might be used later on. At this point, Nikita S. Khrushchev brusquely called off the test of will.

The theory of the new Berlin approach, which is known to be multi-phased, must obviously be based on the Quemoy experience. It is certainly based on a solemn decision to use nuclear weapons if there is no other alternative to surrender. That is its only possible basis. But equally certainly, the new approach does not call for going straight from the most trivial military action to the final leap into the inferno. In some manner, or other, in fact, it allows a serious, reasonably prolonged test of will at Berlin.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff literally could not devise plans for this kind of test, with the forces formerly available. In this sense, the frivolity of the earlier plans is understandable. This in turn also explains the long argument about force levels about a call-up now or later, and so on, which had gripped Washington for weeks. The question was how to provide the forces for a serious test.

The aim of the military test, if it occurs, will of course be to convince Nikita S. Khrushchev that the Western Allies are able to defend Berlin's freedom at all costs. This is the present aim of Western diplomacy. But even if the Berlin crunch reaches the combat stage, room has now been gained for a result like the result at Quemoy.

No Better News

They could be no better news for all of us, for worse news for the Kremlin planners who so plainly believe the Western leaders are trapped by past folly, in unavoidable "self-deterrence." This is the light in which to judge the President's speech, always remembering what that phrase, "At all costs," may mean if the Berlin test of will goes wrong, remembering too that the seriousness of the planning process also means that the President is in deadly earnest.

'Without a Song'

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

THE Chinese are not likely to forget the famous "hundred flowers" period in 1956 when everyone was encouraged to express his personal views on every aspect of Communist China until the day of reckoning came and those who had unadvisedly exposed themselves by criticizing the regime were suddenly subjected to a nation-wide "rectification campaign."

The hundred flowers are blooming again, however, the Chinese once more face all the dangers of relative freedom of expression, and I see that even musical composers are in consequence beginning to attract frowns.

The ideological level of our composers has not yet attained the heights demanded by their creative work," warns the Red Flag, the authoritative organ of the Chinese Communist Party, while generously conceding that had modern Chinese music may also, if to a lesser extent, be blamed on the creative poverty or the ignorance of technique of would-be masters.

It is recognized that composers are striving to extend "the incomparably broad life of socialist society," but they are at the same time laying themselves open to criticism. "Bourgeois aesthetics" are attacked for trying to discard the national musical traditions of China and to create a new musical language "detached from the life of the people."

Conversely, the Red Flag also accuses some composers of local patriotism, of using the folk themes of the particular region or ethnic group of China from which they come as the basis for a national style. This clearly works against the balanced unity of the Chinese People's Republic.

Yet others are in trouble. The man who wrote a piano piece called "Two Flying Butterflies" is told that he did not compose "on the basis of the living and ideological content of music."

Program music representing the doings of heroic Chinese figures is condemned as vulgar and dull because "the hero is not understood at the ideological level and has not been made the symbol of a whole class."

On the other hand, cautious men whose works have such titles as "Defend Yenan!" or "The War of Resistance Against Japan" do not mention the genius who composed a symphonic poem around some verses written by Mao Tse-tung, get off relatively lightly, and are only chided for failure to exploit music as a medium on its own.

In conciliatory vein, however, the Red Flag concludes that Chinese composers will succeed in solving the knotty problem of creating images in music, and will later be able to save these satisfactorily to "revolutionary political content." But it is an ambitious program. Top flight composers from Handel to Britten have been quite content in the past to fulfil only the first part of it. OFNS Copyright.

Cats and Birds

With reference to the letter signed "Auburn" in the Times of July 20, we think the following information will be of interest to him and others.

First it should be known that the officers of the Cats' Protection League are experienced animal welfare workers and have a reverence for all life, including birds. We specialize in cat problems due to the fact that cats are the most abused of all animals due to man's irresponsibility in allowing an overproduction of thousands of unwanted kittens each year and blithely giving them away to anyone who will take them, including pet shops and radio programs, and then abandoning the surplus.

Regarding cats and birds, we always advise people who have cats to keep them in at night and not to let them out early in the morning during the birds' feeding time. We also advise that raw meat be included in their daily diet. Some cat owners train their cat by daily associating it to be friendly to ward birds as the owner feeds them at home or outdoors. Cats are encouraged to kill rats and mice so they can hardly be expected to discriminate between birds and rodents, but a cat usually catches the easiest thing and that is not a bird. We would advise however, that the advice given by the sanitary inspector of Oak Bay to keep a cat hungry is the surest way to encourage it to catch birds as cats do not eat rats but hunt them only for sport.

As far as bird-lovers are concerned, they should be able to take comfort from scientific investigations and reports of the Missouri, California and Michigan Conservation Departments. In a rural area of Missouri where birds are plentiful, an analysis of stomachs of 41 feral cats, mostly highway killed, showed not a trace of a bird, but rats and mice composed most of the food eaten.

Amalgamation the Solution

I sincerely believe that the city of Victoria is destined to become just another ghost-town. Taxes are at the super saturation point, downtown stores are becoming vacant, as rentals are exorbitant, and the city council is desperately grasping for nickels in increased meter rates.

Victoria is and always has been number "One" on the sucker list. You can sell it large balloons that will not function, nitrogen street-lamps which are not needed, parking malls at prohibitive cost. A new City Hall at triple normal cost. An extravagant sidewalk canopy to keep pedestrians from getting wet, even while such canopies, manholes, etc. are now prohibited by city bylaw for fire-fighting purposes.

In reply to my letter, the federal government at Ottawa says that harbor improvements at Victoria are not justified, and the provincial government thinks that it is unnecessary or perhaps too late to appoint an administrator to extricate the City of Victoria from its present predicament.

However, I will suggest, as I have often done in the past 30 years, that they might save the day if Victoria and its three "parasitic" municipalities would agree to amalgamation; and there it is in a nutshell.

Either Way, You Have to Plan

A FEW weeks ago I listened to an intelligent young man talk to a conference of town planners. He told them he was a city boy, loved the city and considered it the noblest work of man. He thought town planning's purpose was to make a good thing better.

Until he had spoken, I had never realized how negative my approach to town planning had been. I'm interested in planning in an unadorned sort of way. But I'd always taken it for granted that planning was essential to make a bad thing less evil. My concept, without any serious thought, had been that you needed cities. They provided the requisites of present-day living, a place to get a job, places to buy what you needed, centres of entertainment, culture, even.

Stott

But you put in your time in the city to get what you had to have. Then you beat it to a more rural area. If your home was in the latter, so much the better. If it wasn't, you schemed up ways of getting "but into the country."

The city, I always felt, was responsible for such unforgivable crimes as cutting down trees, converting brush and fields into lots with buildings on them. Its growth chased away the wild things, the songbirds, the natural flowers. It caused creeks to dry up or be dammed. It put down hard-surfaced roads, where people going nowhere could go nowhere faster with the smell of spent gasoline taking the place of grass after rain, or the dry, indefinable scent of a dirt road in summer.

How I arrived at this attitude, I don't know. It just grew.

And yet there are cities I like. I like Victoria because I feel I belong here. I like London, smells notwithstanding, except the 11 p.m. underground outburst after a hot day. I like Winchester which, they say, is several cities built one on top of another, as new communities took over the debris of earlier sackings. I'm intrigued with the idea that the Roman town is 16 feet down, as some assert when they discuss Alfred's capital.

I like San Francisco, which has a feel to it. I like what little I saw of Paris and hope to see more of it. I liked my brief glimpses of Florence and Rome.

I like Ottawa, but doubt that it is a city. I like Quebec, which I'm sure is.

On the other hand, there are lots of cities, probably better planned than some that appeal to me, that I do not like at all. Perhaps some personal identification clings to them that seems offensive to me.

Unlike the intelligent young man who talked to the conference, I have never thought that cities are fine just because they are cities. They're always seemed attractive to me, or otherwise, by accident.

But the young man and I probably aren't too far apart in the ideals we hold about planning. He wants to make the good better. I want it to be less bad than it might be. And he can make his cities better. I think, by preserving the rural areas, if he'll see them as gardens to his spiritual home.

We both seem to believe in a course of action which won't spoil what we like. That calls for planning. Let him have his fine buildings—and I'm all for them, though the ones that catch my fancy aren't always the ones which the architects admire. Let him have his open spaces within the city and all the amenities of urban living—the concerts, the plays, the art galleries, the libraries—provided I can get my hands on a book occasionally.

Let me have my unbulldozed wilderness, even if it's an ungrazed wilderness. Let me have a few meadows left on the old Saanich Road, a few trails in the Highlands, with streams gurgling beyond the intervening belt of trees.

Let's make it possible, at least in this part of the country, to have the neat, tidy, even bustling streets downtown and close to town, but also the open spaces outside the lungs, as some people call them.

We can have both, though it's going to take some thought—the kind of thought which avoids dumping urbanism-like collected refuse in the clearing of a woods glade, or lets urbanism in its right place deteriorate into so much garbage. That, to me, is what planning means.

Thicken Your Lavender Bush

Now that lavender bushes new growth each year a week or so after the flower spikes are removed.

When the plants are new, that is about six or eight inches high and have produced a dozen or so spikes, it is sufficient to use a pair of clippers and cut back an inch of the new growth on each stem.

With older plants a foot or more high, the shears may be used to clip over the entire bush, taking off about half the length of new growth.

This procedure will thicken the top growth within a few weeks, and before winter the top and sides of the bush will be dense enough to resist frost.

Prevention consists of cutting back a few inches into the entry.

While lavender is hardy enough here, frost will sometimes split the bark of exposed woody stems. If they are allowed to grow bare of plenty of new growth.

It is seldom that an old lavender can be reconditioned, since new growth does not come readily from the hardened bark of old stems.

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—The Berlin crisis seemed to baker paid an unscheduled visit to the grave of former Prime Minister Diefenbaker he constantly at the back of his mind, a southwestern Ontario Conservative prime minister Arthur Meighen, Mrs. Diefenbaker placed on the grave a bouquet of red roses which appeared at the Stratford Shakespeare Festival. At St. Marys, Mr. Diefenbaker had been presented to her at the official welcome to the town. MET CAST The Diefenbakers saw a production of Coriolanus in the Festival Theatre here Tuesday night, and went backstage to meet members of the cast. At Listowel, Mr. Diefenbaker told a crowd of about 1,000 in the town's arena: "It is only 16 years since the war concluded, and it is only 16 weeks from now until the world will face its greatest challenge."

"I hope that there will be a settlement of the Berlin crisis and that there will be peace for this generation and for future generations." He said he hopes that by the time Canada celebrates her centenary in 1967 new provinces will have been added in the north, and that we may hope for the final culmination of the Canadian Confederation.

HOPES FOR PEACE At Moncton he again expressed a hope that there will be peace, "without which we cannot achieve the Canadian destiny. I wonder how long we will be able to achieve that peace."

During a brief stop at Mitchell he told a crowd at the cenotaph that "if democracy is to be preserved, it will only be through the service given by men and women to their country by public service."

And at Sebringville he remarked that if negotiations can give peace to the world, then "these youngsters will live in a world we cannot even comprehend."

CLAIMING to be a deserted husband planning a plane ride prior to committing suicide, Saino Zalsara, 22, surrendered to police in Binghamton, N.Y., after holding a gun on Mohawk Airlines co-pilot Emil Spadoni. The plane was empty except for Spadoni, who managed to stall the gunman until police lured him from the craft to speak to his wife on the telephone.

ISRAELI TAPS SOLAR ENERGY

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—Israeli scientists have built a plant which converts sun rays into electricity with three times the efficiency of the more usual steam-operated plant. It is announced. The new plant uses chlorophyll vapor and has heat accumulators to ensure a continuous supply of energy.

Canada Too Critical of U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada should be less violent in criticism of American policies, a Victoria minister told delegates to the American Newspaper Guild convention here Tuesday night.

Rev. William Hills, outspoken rector of St. George's Anglican Church, Cadboro Bay, said Canadians and Americans are partners and there is not much Canadians can do about it.

Canadians, he said, should appreciate that the U.S. for the first time in history now is not able to stand aloof from world politics as it did before the two past wars.

"After all, the U.S. hasn't had as long to work on foreign policies as have the British," he said. Mr. Hills warned, however, against a one-sided partnership in which Canada would be a satellite of the U.S.

Mr. Hills said there are about four events that have thrown the world into confusion—the breakdown of British imperialism; resulting in nationalistic squabbles like those of Africa; the availability of atomic power for weapons; the emergence of the U.S. into world politics and the rise of Russian imperialism—commonly called international Communism.

Rival Labor Council Ruled Out

By AB KENT

Two Victoria union locals disaffiliated from the Victoria Labor Council are satisfied with their standing without seeking a "rival" labor council here.

They are Local 1118 of International Woodworkers of America and Local 109 of Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America.

"We have a voice where it counts—in the B.C. Federation of Labor and Canadian Labor Congress," an IWA officer said.

New Westminster counterparts of these unions have disaffiliated from Vancouver and District Labor Council and have asked the Canadian Labor Congress for their own charter to establish a labor council in New Westminster.

DIFFERENT ISSUE

Spokesmen say the issues involved here and those on the mainland are quite different.

Counsel Asked To Defend Four Charges

Proceedings in four charges against Elsie M. Smith, or Elsie M. Polson, 1271 Tatter, in city police court today were remanded to Monday when the accused asked for benefit of counsel.

Prior to the request today and in previous hearings she had pleaded guilty to taking a car without the owner's consent, not guilty to three charges of false pretences.

Today Mrs. Smith elected to be tried before a judge and jury on a charge of obtaining a car from Empress Motors, 900 Fort, on July 11 by false pretences.

She had previously elected to be tried by magistrate's court on charges of obtaining goods worth $17.27 and $18.73 from Spencer's Stores Ltd., 1110 Government.

Highest and lowest points in the United States are only 86 miles apart in California—Mount Whitney, 14,496 feet, and Death Valley, 282 feet below sea level.

In fact, the views of the two Victoria locals are themselves diametrically opposed, although each have political roots.

The IWA local, its 1,500 members representing the largest bargaining unit in the area, maintains Victoria Labor Council has not fulfilled its political obligations to its affiliated members—namely by taking an active role in promoting the New Party.

Street railwaymen, on the other hand, withdrew from the council because they were not convinced they were being maintained what they considered proper detachment from politics.

In New Westminster the 5,000-member IWA local vies with the Vancouver IWA local for the largest membership in the province. These woodworkers feel they are not properly represented in the Vancouver Labor Council, that, along with the 306-street railwaymen, their interests would be better served by a New Westminster Labor Council.

CLOSER TO HOME

Doubtless, many other smaller unions in New Westminster, Coquitlam, Delta, Surrey, Langley, and the Fraser Valley, would affiliate with a council closer to home than Vancouver.

The Victoria locals concerned would consider rejoining the labor council here if the political questions were resolved. But whatever happens to "fix" the politics of the Victoria Labor Council, it is bound to be unopposed with one or the other union.

Council leaders pin their hopes of getting both unions and other disaffiliated groups back in the fold on the primary necessity of solid unity in the labor movement.

Besides, the council has begun to suffer financially from the reduced per capita support of the affiliates.

SACRIFICE UNITY

The 225-member street railwaymen's union is willing to sacrifice unity at the local level for complete independence from political taint.

Woodworkers feel exactly the opposite at their local level in B.C. and interpret the Canadian Labor Congress policy on unionism and politics as requiring active participation.

This position with regard to Local 1118 was slightly modified by the remark of a union officer who said it is in the union's opinion, the non-commitment of VLC that capped the IWA withdrawal. "Let's know one way or the other, then, we may rejoin," he said.

BENNETT SET FOR MEETING OF PREMIERS

Premier Bennett will attend the second special conference of provincial premiers at Charlottetown, P.E.I., next month. Premier Shaw of Prince Edward Island said Monday no strict agenda is being prepared in advance. Topics for discussion will be left until "the last minute," he said.

Most of the premiers—all 10 will attend—prefer general discussion rather than specific issues, he added.

The talks will be closed to the press.

There may be several B.C. delegates, although the final list has not been prepared. Attorney-General Robert Bonner or an official from his department may go.

First such premiers' conference was held last fall in Quebec. The plan is to make it an annual affair, and Victoria is possible site for the 1962 meeting.

Drought-Stricken Farmers Claim 'We'll Get Through'

SALTCOATS, Sask. (CP)—

"We'll get through."

With these words farmer Thomas Neal summed up the feeling of himself and most of his neighbors farming in this drought-stricken district of the east-central Saskatchewan parkland.

For most of the farmers their crops are poor and feed is at a premium.

"I wouldn't say this is the worst year we've had," Neal said Tuesday in an interview. "I don't think we've ever gone as long without rain, but the crop prospects are a little better this year than they were in the '30s."

Saltcoats is one of the hardest hit areas of the parched Prairies but Neal says he and his neighbors have not given up on the rain. He said a problem of water for their good downpour would double the yield of uncultivated crops and help in filling out grain heads.

Neal, who farms 4½ sections of land with his brother Jack, his son Lorne, 25, and Jack's son, Lyle, 21, said they will have sufficient feed for their 200 head of purebred Herefords for the winter.

STILL HAVE RAY

The Neals have half of last year's hay left over and 150 acres each of oats and barley that they'll keep for feed.

With these stocks of fodder and feed, they will not have to buy from outside sources and they'll be able to retain their herd.

Three dugouts and three wells on the farm solve the up on the rain. He said a problem of water for their stock. However, many farmers and ranchers are not as lucky.

The provincial government survey on water and potatoes this spring showed that the number had dropped critically to less than 500,000 compared with 2,500,000 at the same time last year.

"With the little rainfall we've had, I don't see how the crops have done as well as they have," Neal said.

"It's surprising how they've held up so far."

Neal estimated that their wheat will average around 10 bushels an acre if present conditions continue. A little rain and it'll go up one or two bushels, he said.

Their farm has a long-term average of 30 bushels an acre of wheat.

OUTDOOR REPORT BY Doug Peden

Vancouver Island hunters will find some interesting changes in shooting laws when copies of 1961 provincial game regulations roll off the presses next week.

Here are the ones that should make for the most conversation among island cartridge addicts:

- The season on antlerless deer has been increased by one week, including the southern portion of the island.
- The daily bag limit for ducks has been reduced 25 per cent, from eight birds to six.
- An extra five days has been tagged onto the black brant season, extending the shooting period until March 5.
- A season on antlerless elk has been declared for three areas in the northern portion of the island.
- It is probable that the use of military ammunition of any kind—whether altered or not—will be outlawed for hunting in B.C.
- Metal deer and moose-elk tags are expected to be replaced by vinyl tags, which are applied by sticking adhesive-coated ends together and which have found favor in the U.S. Law dodgers will find they take longer to apply.

Grouse Shooting Starts September 2

As expected, legal shooting at blue and ruffed (willow) grouse will start on Sept. 2. The blues will be in season until Nov. 5 and the willows will be legal game until Dec. 10. The daily bag limit remains the same, eight birds per hunter, of which six may be ruffed grouse.

Deer shooting on Vancouver Island and many parts of the mainland gets under way on Sept. 16. Island hunters will again be allowed three deer for the season, of which two may be antlerless. Over most portions of the island, riflemen will be permitted to take deer of any sex from Nov. 11 until the season closes on Dec. 3.

In the area south of the Koksilah and San Juan Rivers, and on Salt Spring Island, antlerless season, which was two days last year, has been stretched to nine days—Nov. 25 to Dec. 3.

Vancouver Island elk will be legal targets from Oct. 7 to Oct. 22. It's a bulls-only season in most sections, but in the Oyster, Tsalim and Black Creek drainage areas hunters will be permitted to fill their one-elk limits by taking either bulls or antlerless animals.

Season on ducks, coots and geese, including snow geese, are about the same as a year ago—Oct. 15 to Jan. 18. However, because of drought conditions that have had a disastrous effect on prairie breeding grounds, the daily bag limit has been sliced to six ducks. The goose limit of five birds per day is unchanged.

Later Season Subject to Approval

Brant hunters, who have long been clamoring for an extension of the season on the small sea geese, are due for a break. The black brant season, starting Jan. 13, has been extended five days, until March 5. The later season, like all regulations pertaining to migratory birds, is subject to approval from federal authorities, but is expected to be confirmed.

Pheasants and Wilson's snipe come into season on Oct. 15. Pheasants may be taken until Nov. 30 and the daily limit for most of the island will again be two cock birds. In the area south of the Shawinigan Lake Cut-Off Road, the pheasant limit will again be four, of which two may be hens.

Hunters may pop cartridges at Band-tailed pigeons from Sept. 2 until Oct. 15 and may take 10 per day.

Game branch officials say that the province's deer population is higher than it has been for many years. Three favorable winters and good feeding conditions have also helped increase moose, caribou and elk herds and restrictions have been eased in several areas.

In Game Management Area 13, for instance, there will be an any-elk season from Sept. 1 to Dec. 3 to reduce herds in the Adams Lake area.

Because of variations and special regulations within the 21 Game Management Areas, it is important that each hunter obtain and study regulations for the areas he intends to visit.

YOU CAN ALWAYS LEARN: A couple of fussy and precise anglers almost flipped at Otter Point last Sunday. They had been enviously watching one guy pull in three good coho, and a big spring salmon. When he pulled in at the beach, the experts sneaked a peek at his tackle, which included at least four feet of leader from flasher to herring strip. The bulky home-prepared strip looked like it had been trimmed with pinkish shears—and it was inserted in a Strip-Tearer with meat side out.

ATLANTIC CITY SWIM

A Wedding Gift...

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Herman Willemse and Mary Kok—a Dutch couple who plan to marry—helped themselves to a $5,700 wedding present Tuesday by finishing first and sixth respectively in the 25-mile Atlantic City swim.

Willemse won the event for the second year in a row with a time of 11 hours, 14 minutes and 45 seconds. Blonde Greta Andersen of California was second, the best finish ever by a woman in the swim's history.

Next in the field of 13 came a pair of Canadians: 30-year-old Cliff Lumsden of Toronto who has won twice and tied for second last year, and 26-

CHOSEN to play for National League in second All-Star game next week at Boston's Fenway Park is Chicago's incomparable Ernie Banks. NL manager Danny Murtagh also added San Francisco's Ed Bailey and Los Angeles' Don Drysdale.

NOW THERE'S A RACE THAT IS 'SURE THING'

GOODWOOD (Reuters)—That ardent race-goer Queen Elizabeth chuckled along with the rest of the fans Tuesday when a single horse ran and, but hatch, won a race carrying a $13,05 ($3,654) prize.

The reason for Hamanet's solo participation in the Bentinck Stakes was that the other entries dropped out, largely because their owners didn't want them to run against Sir Winston Churchill's High Hat.

But then High Hat was scratched, leaving Happy Hamanet to go it alone. Under the rules the race had to be run but he didn't have to go the distance—only from the paddock past the judges.

He won by several lengths.

Basic Rules

A few basic, simple rules will help your game.

In a bunker or sand trap, be sure of getting out. Don't try to play a fancy shot unless you are absolutely sure you can make it. Better to be out of trouble with a good shot in prospect than to go from the frying pan into the fire—or back into the frying pan.

Keep your mind completely on the ball once you've started the backswing. After the swing is started is no time to decide what you're going to do and how you're going to do it. These things should be figured out before you begin the swing.

While concentrating on the swing, don't think ahead of it. Keep your mind on the business at hand.

Be SURE of getting out.

Anchor the chin on the ball. Don't move it from that spot.

City Juniors Remain In Tennis Title Hunt

VANCOUVER—Victoria juniors were still in the running for titles in the under-15 divisions as play continued in the British Columbia clay courts tennis championships on Tuesday.

Although she lost, 6-0, 6-3, to Leslie Abrahams, of San Francisco, in the under-18 division, Margaret Maysmith, of Victoria, remained in action in the under-15 section with a victory over R. Rand, of Vancouver, 6-1, 6-0.

Rick Fraser also remained alive in the under-15 boys' division with a 6-0, 6-0 win over J. Schmaling, of Vancouver.

In other under-18 action, Gillian Thomas, of Victoria, went down, 6-2, 6-3, to Jodene Seayle, of Seattle, and, in a boys' match, John Clancy, of Seattle, ousted Don McCormick, of Victoria, 6-3, 6-2.

Finals Reached At Uplands Club

Italians Conquer McKinley Peak

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—Six Italians have scaled Mt. McKinley's previously unconquered south face—a sheer wall of blue ice—to reach the 20,320-foot peak, the highest in North America.

The report of the daring feat came from John Carlo Canali.

Boom Times In School Construction

A surge in elementary school building this year was reported Tuesday by the provincial department of education.

So far 182 elementary classrooms have either been started or are planned throughout B.C.

Total for all 1960 was 222. Department officials say the building surge follows a new policy recommended by the Chant royal commission, which puts Grade 7 down into elementary school.

This means that extra classroom space is needed in most elementary schools for the coming year.

Among most recent projects approved by the department are a new school at Alberni, to cost $43,610, and a one-room addition to Sangster Elementary School at Sooke, costing $15,607.

one of the members of the Italian climbing expedition, who was taken off the Alaskan mountain at the 10,000-foot level Tuesday and flown to a hospital here for treatment of frozen feet.

The climbers, led by Riccardo Cassin, reached the lofty south summit the morning of July 19, according to Canali.

They spent 15 minutes on the peak, but then were forced to descend because of high winds and snow.

AMPUTATION UNLIKELY
Doctors at Providence Memorial Hospital here said Canali was fortunate to have reached treatment when he did. They said it will take another three days to be sure, but it appeared the climber's frozen feet would not have to be amputated.

Bush pilot Don Sheldon, who landed on a narrow ice field to evacuate Canali, told UPI he was to return to the mountain later to pick up two more members of the party and fly them to the hospital. He said he believed they also have frostbitten feet.

The climbers, from the Lake Como region of northern Italy, are members of the Lecco chapter of the Italian Alpine Club. Others in the group besides Cassin and Canali were Roman Perego, Luigi Arzoidi, Luigi Alippi, and Annibale Zucchi.

MONTE ROBERTS

From a safe and semi-recumbent shore-side position the other day I watched with great interest as a young feller lashed about on a pair of water-skis.

He was skimming along at what to me seemed an unconscionable rate of speed, swinging wide and banking happily behind a well-handled outboard.

I was happy to note the boat was not only manned by a driver, who kept his eyes ahead, but by a sort of co-pilot, who rode facing the stern, keeping watch over the skier.

I was getting quite a bit of vicarious enjoyment from this little waterfront show, when a sort of nagging feeling crept into my cerebrum.

Had I, as the delightful cartoon panel which appears daily in this paper suggests, been born 30 years too soon?

In the days when I used to amuse myself in, on, and over the water, skis were far in the future.

We used to ride, on occasion, aquaplanes, which were nothing more than clumsy adaptations of the surfboard, and if we achieved a rousing 15 knots behind a cranky outboard, it was something to dream about.

How much more fun, I thought, for the water-minded young feller of today—the extra speed and grace of the narrow boards, the added satisfaction of feeling the ropes thro' directly into the yoke held by your own two hands...

And then I thought about what I had missed because my swimming days were ended before even the most rudimentary skidding equipment came along.

A grove of underwater, follow-the-leader could last only as long as your breath, you could see bare inches ahead through eyes unprotected by goggles; nobody (at least nobody I knew) had ever heard of flippers.

Born 30 years too soon, I mused, as the outboard and the young feller behind it skimmed away into the distance.

In my time, going skidding simply meant going swimming "skins," a pleasure enjoyed only in some solitary swimming hole or isolated cove somewhere along the fjord-pocked coast...

Enjoyed, usually, after a few hours of solid paddling in a canoe whose propulsion machinery went "Plop-swish," and the rippling noise under the keel indicated you were speeding along at four or five knots...

Enjoyed just before you up-bottomed the canoe over a pair of logs, spread your blanket roll on the sand, built a cooking fire, and got smoke in your eyes while you made sure there were plenty of grounds in the coffee...

The first faint rays of the sun woke you in the morning, and it was case of hurry the morning cook fire to get away while the dawn calm was still on the water, then...

"Plop, swish," and the ripple of water beneath the keel.

Possibly I WAS born 30 years too soon.

Or perhaps the young feller I was watching was born 30 years too late.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Antique dealer Michael Cotton, 946 Fort Street, told police Tuesday that a grizzly bear trap was stolen from his yard sometime during the last two weeks.

Only description he could give police was that it is a "large" No. 6 trap, valued at $75.

Jack Alexander, whose home at 905 Happy Valley Road was burned to the ground last Saturday night, today expressed thanks to the many people who have helped him and his family.

"We are deeply grateful to those who have contributed money and assistance, Mr. Alexander said.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander and their four children were rendered homeless by the fire. They are now renovating an other home on Happy Valley Road and hope to move in soon.

Screams drove off a would-be assailant Tuesday night when he accosted a woman walking alone on Vancouver Street.

Donna Barker, 1327 Walnut, told police a man had tried to put his arm around her but fled when she screamed.

Thomas William Bligh, of Sooke, and John Houston Reid, 3303 Doncaster Street, were each fined $50 by magistrate Eugene Murphy in Sooke RCMP court Tuesday for consuming liquor in a public place.

Experiment with a plastic aluminium modernistic litter bin has been a success and 10 more will be erected on city streets soon, city planner Roderick Clark said Tuesday.

Colored yellow and topped with a shield to discourage deposit of large bundles of garbage, they will go up in the downtown area.

Richard Allan Parker, 20, of 1971 Oak Bay, was remanded without election to Aug. 1 when he appeared in Saanich police court Tuesday charged with indecent assault.

He is accused of assaulting an 11-year-old girl July 24.

Hank Mickish, 1249 Rockland, suffered lacerations to his right leg Tuesday evening when the motorcycle he was riding north on Cook Street collided with a car turning east onto Port driven by Alec Baird, 1035 Pentreave Place.

He declined medical aid. The vehicles were not damaged.

Barbara Pearson, 12, of 1330 Jubilee Avenue, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday afternoon after coming into collision with a car as she was crossing Port at Davis. She received treatment for slight abrasions to her right leg.

Driver of the car proceeding east on Port was Maurice Fitzgerald, 2716 Dewdney, police said.

St. Joseph's Hospital today reported no change in the condition of 71-year-old Mundi Olafsson Goodmanson, 928 Clarke, victim of a two-car collision at the junction of West Saanich Road and the Patricia Bay Highway, Monday.

He is still in "fair" condition with severe head injuries, broken ribs and undetermined chest injuries.

Three 10-year-old boys have pitched in to help the children's aid society here.

Family and Children's Service director David Woods today reported a donation of $171 by the boys—earned the hard way.

"They took some soft drink powder, mixed up a batch and tried selling it on the street in their neighborhood," he said.

"That didn't work too well so they sold some door to door."

"We're really delighted with this donation, because it represents a lot of initiative and work by those boys to help others."

The enterprising Good Samaritans are: John Parsons, 1277 Lullie; Philip Powell, 2541 Cranmore, and John Meares, 2660 Shady Lane.

A quantity of explosives was stolen from the works site of Helmecken Road underpass, Colwood RCMP reported Tuesday.

A total of 25 pounds of blasting sticks made up of 40 per cent forcite was taken from a locked shed on the site.

Ken Nelson, 1263 Grant, told police there was a prowler at his address about 1:35 a.m. today. He said the man was about six feet tall, wearing a light-colored jacket and dark pants. Police searched the area without result.

A test of the aircraft rescue capabilities of the weathering CMS Stonetown 4 and 8 p.m. Thursday about six miles south of Ogden Point.

An RCAF Albatross will declare a state of emergency, home in on Stonetown's radar and "ditch" in a sea lane marked with dye markers by the weathering.

Flares and other illuminations will be fired during the exercise.

THING TO DO IN U.K.

Saddling Up By Thousands

By AB KENT

The British motor industry might not agree, but Britons are reacting against the "mobile" in favor of Old Dobbin—a leading English equestrienne said here today.

In the city on a two-day visit demonstrating dressage, Mrs. Sheila Inderwick said horses are more popular than ever in England, where they have always enjoyed a top spot.

"Thousands ride in Britain. Clubs are growing tremendously," she said at Victoria Riding Academy, where she was to give two clinics today and two Thursday in the training of mounts and riders.

As in North America, there is a natural reaction against so much auto traffic, and in England even the large oil companies have organized horse riding clubs, Mrs. Inderwick said.

Interest is high among children, especially girls, and Mrs. Inderwick, a senior judge and member of the British Horse Society's dressage committee, deals with many of them.

"They are receptive and have the courage," often lacking in adults, she said.

IMPRESSED

In a brief stop at Calgary, Mrs. Inderwick was impressed with the young riders she saw. She is in B.C. at the invitation of horse enthusiasts and will judge a show at Haney before her return to England at the end of a fortnight in Canada, her first trip abroad for training purposes, although she has competed with the British team in Holland.

All her life Mrs. Evelyn Butterfield loved wild flowers—and this love has survived her death.

In her will, probated today, Mrs. Butterfield directed that her house and 13 acres of flower gardens at 1184 Mount Newton Cross Road, Saanich, shall eventually go to Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association.

"It is my fervent hope," she wrote, "that the said association will to the best of its ability continue to protect the wild flowers growing thereon."

DIED IN MAY

Mrs. Butterfield, a lifelong resident of Victoria and a devoted gardener, died here last May 29 at the age of 75. She left estate of the gross value of $45,056 to her daughter, Miss Hilda Dorothy Butterfield, directing that the house and gardens should eventually go to the Thetis Park Association.

In the will, Mrs. Butterfield stated that "for many years my daughter and I have protected and propagated the native wild flowers growing on my property... in an effort to preserve them from destruction and possible extinction."

SCHOLARSHIPS

Mrs. Butterfield willed the residue of her estate to Victoria College for the founding of "one or more" scholarships to be known as the Butterfield Scholarships.

She directed that half the income from the estate should be used to help students engaged in medical and scientific studies; one-quarter to students of music and one-quarter to art students.

Miss M. C. Melburn, secretary of Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, said Mrs. Butterfield was devoted to gardens and wild flowers.

"We are deeply grateful for her kind thought of us and will certainly respect her wishes."

The Thetis Park association was founded in 1957. Edward Lohrunner is president.

IMPROVING STEADILY

A 63-year-old city man is continuing to make a steady recovery after a delicate operation last week during which his heart stopped beating.

St. Joseph's Hospital said today Nelson Fleming, 163 Olive, now is in "fair" condition.

Flower-Lover Wills Home To Park Group

All her life Mrs. Evelyn Butterfield loved wild flowers—and this love has survived her death.

In her will, probated today, Mrs. Butterfield directed that her house and 13 acres of flower gardens at 1184 Mount Newton Cross Road, Saanich, shall eventually go to Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association.

Sign Law Showdown Imminent

Showdown in a revived controversy over city sign regulations is expected soon.

Mayor Percy Scourah today announced he will order revamping of a special committee headed by Ald. J. L. W. Macdonald which steered the new sign bylaw through council last fall.

"I hope they can meet in the next day or so and I definitely want the press to be present at the meeting," he said.

The mayor's statement was the only announcement following a one-hour interview obtained by a delegation of sign company representatives this morning.

It was believed they submitted strong complaints over public statements by city planner Roderick Clark pointing out that a promise of early removal of billboards had not been carried out.

City Man Accused In Reserve Blaze

A Victoria man was scheduled to appear in Colwood police court this afternoon to face a charge of starting a fire Saturday on Songhees Indian Reserve.

He is Leonard Joseph Howe, 1245 Chapman Street. Charge will be of starting a fire by throwing away a burning cigarette.

Fire on the Indian reserve covered five acres before being brought under control by a Langford suppression crew.

He will be the second man to face court action in regard to forest fires in as many days.

On Tuesday James Norman Galbraith, 3080 Cedar Hill Road, appearing in Sooke police court, admitted dumping cigarette butts from his car Saturday while driving through East Sooke.

RCMP officers saw the butts leave the car, then stopped their car and extinguished them. Galbraith said he did not smoke, but that the cigarettes belonged to his passengers.

Magistrate Eugene Murphy fined him $50, and gave him a lecture on the fire danger in the area.

"You were aware the police car was behind you," he said. "This almost seemed to flaunt the regulations. You're lucky you're not a smoker. This would have cost you more."

Talks Aug. 7 On Play Areas

A new concept of combining schools with public recreation areas will be discussed in a special meeting of Oak Bay Council and Greater Victoria school trustees Aug. 7.

Talks are set to deal with a request from the school board for Fireman's Park, adjoining Oak Bay's combined police-fire hall, in order to build a new four-room school able to handle an expected 150-pupil increase in enrolment by the fall of 1962.

4-Month Suspension, $275 in Fines For Impaired Driver

John H. Halladay, 433 Superior Street, was fined a total of $275 and banned from driving anywhere in Canada for four months after he pleaded guilty in city police court today to impaired driving and driving without a driver's licence.

Magistrate William Ostler imposed a $250 fine and the driving ban on Halladay for impaired driving and $25 for driving without a licence.

Police said Halladay's car was seen Tuesday evening stopped at the traffic lights at Humboldt and Government. It backed into a car and then, when the lights changed to green, swerved across the road and struck the curb, where it stopped.

ASK The TIMES

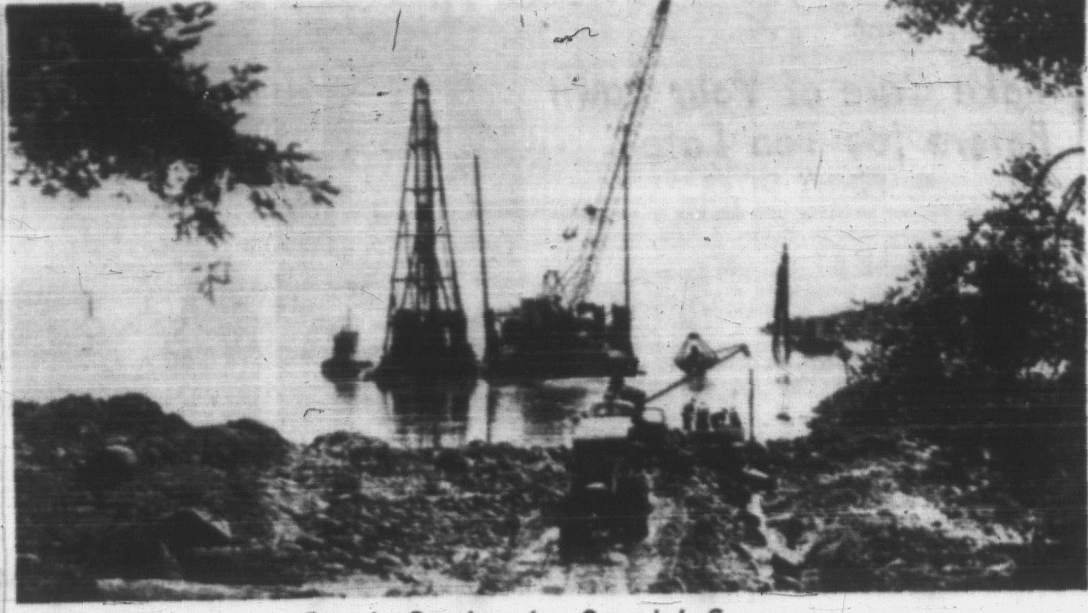

Q. I have been recently told that the plural of the abbreviation lb (for pound) is lbs. When I was in school, we never used an "s" in the plural of lb. Who is right?—R.C.

A. According to the Webster Unabridged English Dictionary, either usage is correct. The sign lb. is an abbreviation of the Latin word "libra", meaning pound, of which the plural is "librae", containing no "s", which explains the older usage. Since the standard plural ending for English nouns is "s", lbs. has gradually become the more common form.

The Oxford English Dictionary makes no mention of a plural of lb.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Scenic Setting for Saanich Sewer

Scenic setting for this work party seems appropriate because the dredges and workmen of Vancouver Pile Driving will help make Saanich "sweeter." Times photographer took picture at the end of Monarch Road where the company has begun construction of a $136,000 sewer outfall to serve the Gordon Head-Shelbourne sewer line which will eliminate septic tanks and open ditches in the heavily-populated area. Outfall will be completed this year so that homes can connect to sewer early in 1962.

VHS Student Tops District

William Frederick Hubbard, a 17-year-old student of Victoria High School, won the highest standing in School District 61 in the recent Grade 12 government examinations, it was announced today.

His 91.5 average mark places him seventh in the province.

According to him are awards totalling nearly $700—and one dinner.

The cash awards go with the standing $500 for being first in the area from the Chris Spencer Foundation, and half of a year's university fees from the provincial government for having achieved a first class standing, that is, 80 per cent or better.

TAKE HIM UP

The dinner comes about courtesy of Stanley Murphy, who is an English teacher at Victoria High School as well as being a Saanich councillor. He offered his student a dinner at the Empress Hotel if he won a scholarship, and Bill plans to take him up on it.

Bill will be entering Victoria College in the fall to study biology and English. He lives with his parents at 2915 Harriet Road.

Highest student in Area 13, which covers all of Vancouver Island except the Victoria district, was Christopher J. Brealey of Campbell River Junior-Senior High School, who had an average of 90.875 per cent.

21 DAYS WITHOUT A DROP

A bit of cloudiness is expected here Thursday, according to the weatherman, but there will be no rain to mar the current stretch of 21 days without precipitation.

A weather disturbance now giving cloud at the weather ship will be responsible, he said. There also will be early morning fog along the shore.

Last rain here was July 5, when there was a fall of .28 inch. Prior to that time there had been .01 inch June 28 and .01 inch June 29, and the only rain of consequence before that was .13 inch June 10.

Minimum temperature tonight will be 35 degrees, and the maximum Thursday 70 degrees, with light southeast winds.

Forecast for the next three weeks will be Allan MacQuarrie of Calgary, replacing Victoria weatherman William Mackie, who is having a vacation.

Dock Project Warning Given Critics

Establishment of a marine services building and dock in the Inner Harbor area could be a definite asset and "complementary" to the appearance of the harbor.

This is the personal opinion of Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich who, as chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board, conveyed objections to the plan to Transport Minister Leon Balcer.

The objections were raised by Victoria groups, including the conservation council, on the grounds that docks, shipping and shore gear would be an eyesore.

"I conveyed the objections to the minister," said Mr. Chatterton. "And I believe too much criticism might lose the project to Vancouver."

Mayor Percy Scourah of Victoria expressed complete agreement with Reeve Chatterton.

"He is absolutely right in saying we might lose the project," the mayor said.

"We managed to get consideration for it only after terrific pressure. I know Vancouver is going after it."

Atlas Theatre Re-Opens Aug. 21

By PHIL LEE
Times Movie Reviewer

Yates Street, once Victoria's gay theatre row, now a drab reminder of the onslaught of television, will regain some of its former brilliance on Aug. 21 when the Atlas Theatre re-opens after a five-year closure.

At the time the Atlas was in operation, marquees of five motion picture houses dominated the scene.

The Atlas, the Dominion, and the Plaza closed, leaving only Famous Players' Capitol and J. Arthur Rank's Odeon.

Re-opening the Atlas is H. G. Prieswerck, a son of Dr. G. Prieswerck, who built the Atlas in 1935 as Victoria's "first air-conditioned theatre."

Dr. Prieswerck later leased it to Famous Players but the lease expires at the end of this month. Famous did not renew, so Mr. Prieswerck decided to operate it himself after renovations and general redecoration.

He has been in the motion picture business (he is a projectionist) since 1925 when his father bought the old Columbia Theatre.

Mr. Prieswerck said the Atlas will operate night time only Monday through Friday. It will be open all day Saturdays.

John Kroeger, formerly assistant manager of the Odeon Theatre, will be manager of the Atlas.

Take Care of Your Lawn Before It's Too Late

By PENNY SAVER

Two days without watering, and damage to your lawn becomes almost irreparable, for the rest of the season at any rate. Now is the time to give your lawn a treat, in hopes that it will last green and luxuriant until September.

The treat that Penny found today is a new fertilizer that kills weeds at the same time, or, as you wish, a weed-killer that fertilizes. It can be sprinkled on—a special applicator is not absolutely necessary. Powder will not burn the grass.

A large sack of the fertilizer will take care of 5,000 square feet of lawn, at price of $6.25. Smaller sack for 2,500 square feet costs $3.65.

Same store is featuring specials on that essential piece of gardening equipment, the watering can. One model is a metal, green-painted gallon can, regularly $4.95, selling now for $4.49. It is a Hawes type of English watering can, that comes complete with a brass spray nozzle or "rose."

Second type of sprinkling can is a two-gallon size made of durable, heavy white plastic, fitted with sturdy black plastic base and spray nozzle. Regular price of $4.98 has been cut to only $3.98.

A little more expensive, and perhaps not entirely "Penny Saver," is a new lawnmower for cutting edges. It is a new item that I hoped you would like to hear about. The 10-inch mower is especially weighted so that it will not tip over as you cut the lawn edges. This perennial problem for the gardener promises to be solved. Mower is $19.95.

EV 2-3131 is the number if you would like to know where Penny shopped.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It's Fine To Be Busy—
But Not Under Strain

No matter how well we try to plan, there always will be some days which push us past happy activity and into hurry and strain. Crises will arise and unexpected obligations will sneak up on us. Have you ever stopped to analyze these wearing days which wring us dry of energy? Usually, when we give thought to this, we find that a little more preventive planning or more organization in our life would have made a difference. Sometimes we find that we are simply trying to do too much, that we are spreading our energy and our time too thin.

If you hope to remain youthful, it is essential that you avoid as many of these days as possible. You simply cannot live in a state of perpetual rush without showing it around your eyes and mouth. You also probably will acquire a harried, drawn expression and sooner or later you are likely to become chronically tired.

It is not so much how hard we work as the complexity and the rush which "gets us." Even social life which is fun is wearing if you do so much of it that it leads to hurry. Studies have shown that the average society woman uses more energy than a woman with a full time job.

Deep breathing is a wonderful medicine for times of stress and strain. Have you tried it lately? Few folks even take time to breathe properly. The majority use only the upper portion of their lungs for their habitual intake of oxygen.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Moore, 1720 Hollywood Crescent, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Deanna Betty, to Mr. Orest H. Hylaw, son of Mrs. E. Hylaw, 710 Alfred Avenue, Winnipeg, Man. Mr. Hylaw is a graduate of the University of Manitoba. The wedding will take place in All Saints' Cathedral in Winnipeg on Sept. 9 at 4 p.m.

Sisters Attend Bride

Victoria Truth Centre was the setting recently when Rev. E. Smiley united in marriage Dawn Lucille Tennant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tennant of Saanichton and Michael William George Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Gibson of Colwood.

The petite bride entered the church on the arm of her father. Her bridal gown featured a sequin-trimmed basque bodice with lily point sleeves and a full floor-sweeping skirt of white lace and net over satin.

Lovers' knot design was embroidered on her filmy veil that misted from a tiara of aurora borealis sequins. She carried a sheaf of red roses.

All the attendants were sisters of the bride. Mrs. R. Fisher and Miss April Tennant wore dresses of mauve nylon over taffeta with bow hats on tone. Miss Patti Tennant wore a dress of pink nylon over taffeta. All carried sheafs of mauve and pink gladioli.

Bruce Heigesen was best man. Ushers were Albert Jacobson and Robert Fisher. Dale Tennant, brother of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness at the reception held in the Boilermakers' Hall. The bride presented her bouquet to her grandmother, Mrs. S. Lennox, who was celebrating a birthday.

For the honeymoon trip to California, the new Mrs. Gibson donned a mauve suit with matching hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Honey Apricot Conserve

1 cup dried apricots, 1 1/2 cups chopped walnut meats cups honey, 3/4 to 1 cup chopped walnut meats.

Rinse apricots in hot water, drain and put through food chopper, using fine blade. Heat honey, remove from heat, add apricots and nuts, and stir to blend. Pour into sterilized glasses; seal with paraffin. Let stand two weeks before using. Makes approximately two pints.

Good on toast and hot biscuits, too.

DEAR ABBY

What's in an Age?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 63-year-old widow who is interested in marrying a lovely little grey-haired widow. She has a sparkling personality and seems to be made to order for me. Her children are married and so are mine. She never has mentioned her age. She appears to be about 35 or 36, but friends who have known her longer than I tell me she is every day of 60. Do you think it would be out of line for me to ask her how old she is? GREY MUSTACHE

DEAR GREY: Don't ask her. But if she tells you, add five years and marry her anyway.

DEAR ABBY: I am a man of 44 and I am married to a woman of 38. We have been married two years and we agreed when we were married that we would wait a while before having a family. Well, I think we have waited long enough, but my wife keeps stalling. I feel it will be unfair to the children to have parents that are too old to be companions to them. Am I wrong or is she? EDDIE

DEAR EDDIE: You are right and if you want "originals" you had better hurry before the factory goes out of business.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died, leaving me with two little girls. I remarried. The parents of my first husband are still the grandparents of my children. The parents of my second husband also call themselves the "grandparents" of my children. When the "real" grandparents come to visit us, I don't know how to introduce them to my friends. They are no longer my "in-laws", but they ARE my children's grandparents. How do I introduce them without too much explanation? CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Introduce them as "Mother and Dad So and So—my late husband's parents—Susie's and Mary's grandparents."

CONFIDENTIAL TO CALL FORNIA: Yes, in your part of the country the children grow taller. And the marriages shorter.

House Guests

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shorey and Mrs. Shorey, from Winnipeg, Man., are visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hunter, at their Cranmore Road home. The couple plan to stop at Vancouver and Seattle en route home next week.

Returns Home

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Chubb have returned to their Craigdarroch Road home after a holiday on the mainland, where they heard and tested new pipe organs. They now await the arrival of their son, Mr. George Chubb, an organist, who is motoring here from Montreal with his wife and children, James, Mary and John.

Spurns Car For Joys Of Walking

By PAT DUFOUR

One woman who refuses to exchange "Shank's pony" for the ease of car driving is Mrs. G. S. Steiner who lives in Altringham, Cumbria, Eng. Staying at the Olde England Inn, Mrs. Steiner is here to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Graeme, and to see for the first time her three grandchildren, Jocelyn, Diana and Ian Peter. Says this strikingly young grandmother, "It scares me to see so many people—even at home—driving everywhere—even just to the corner store."

"At home, we walk 15 miles just for sheer enjoyment every single weekend. My husband commutes by train to Manchester every day during the week (Altringham is 11 miles from the northern centre) and the car sits unused—in the garage."

Prof. Steiner is a polymath chemist attached to Manchester University and director of a chemical engineering firm.

If you have any illusions that it's easier to get a college degree in Canada than in England, this vivacious woman will soon put you straight.

"Eighty per cent of the university students at home are subsidized by the government. Grants are not token affairs; they're sufficient to cover all costs of the students."

"It's absolutely thrilling to meet my husband's students. You find a complete cross section, ranging from boys with broad Lancashire accents to public school boys from the so-called best families. Amazingly enough, they all thoroughly enjoy the experience."

A former theatrical costume designer before her marriage, Mrs. Steiner now enjoys sculpturing—"strictly as an amateur."

Asked whether she's tempted to try modelling likenesses of her three attractive grandchildren, she gives an emphatic, "No."

She elaborates: "It takes a real artist to model children. Most artists get them looking like dolls or little old women. I'm a great admirer of Epstein—he's one artist that can really capture the magic of a child."

What impresses her most about Victoria? "Your roads—they're so wide—after the narrow roads of Manchester they're fabulous. The scenic beauty of the Island leaves her 'breathless' and she describes the air journey over Canada as one she'll never forget."

"I was intrigued with the different colored roofs of the houses—they looked just like a mosaic pattern."

Noticing the rapport between Mrs. Steiner and the younger Graemes, I ventured to suggest that she'd miss them when she leaves Victoria on Saturday.

"Of course I will—but I still have a seven-year-old boy of my own to go home to."

Noticing my amazement, she explained that she and her husband had adopted young Philip from a home where she worked as a volunteer for three years.

"One has to keep busy and I don't play bridge or golf. Can you think of anything more satisfying than children?" Point scored for Mrs. Steiner.

Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitaker, of Hollywood Crescent, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary this afternoon with a party in the Empress Hotel. About 50 guests attended the party in honor of the couple, who were married in Lancaster, England, in 1911. The Whitakers have one daughter, Mrs. E. MacDonald, in Hamilton, Ont. Mr. Whitaker was the chief architect of the provincial government for 36 years.

From England

Mrs. C. R. McLernon, formerly of Tripoli, Libya, was joined in Victoria Monday night by her three sons, Brian, and twins, John and David, who have been at school in England. Mrs. McLernon has been staying since early June with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Grove, 904 Esquimalt Road. En route by air to Victoria, the boys spent a few days in New York with their father. The family will join Mr. McLernon in early fall.

Visiting Mother

Capt. Charles Metcalfe, with his wife and their daughters, Wendy and Vicki, of Ottawa, is visiting his mother, Mrs. L. Metcalfe at her Rithet Street home until the end of the month.

Skating Party

Members of the Belmont High School band were entertained at a skating party recently by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley H. Owen of the Colwood Roller Skating Rink. Skates were supplied by the rink and members of the parents' group served refreshments. Present were Mr. and Mrs. D. Kerley, Fraser and Chris Kerley, Peter Davies, Linda, Quiring, Gail Young, Barbara Turner, Ellen Van Den Burg, Eleanor Ruffles, Ross Palsson, Terry Findlay, Peter Collier, Richard Warrington, Trudy Nickles, Marcel Bouveur, Mark Vesey, Thora Palsson, Sue Van Den Burg, Judy Dunstan, Lils De Groot, Hubert De Groot, John Thomas, Terry Owen, Lois Rayner, Mavis Grant, Sandy Spotswood, Robbie McIntosh, Murray Johnson, David Page, Ron Mills, Hilary Dawkins, Marilyn Maxie, Carol Hanson and Irene Welms.

A Bridal Shower

Miss Marilyn Martin, whose marriage to Mr. Geoffrey George Thorpe takes place on August 5, was honored by Mrs. Keith Pritchard of Duncan, who held a shower party at the home of Mrs. J. G. Martin, Larkdowne Road.

A miniature church held the gifts. The bride-elect received a corsage of white carnations, while her mother, Mrs. J. G. Martin, and mother of groom-elect, Mrs. W. G. Thorpe, were presented with pink corsages.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Peter McBeth of Lloydminster, Sask., and Miss Helen Morrison of Toronto. Other guests included Mrs. C. Wilkins, Mrs. K. Peterson, Mrs. D. E. Wilson, Mrs. J. M. Gelling, Mrs. J. P. Boydreau, Mrs. G. H. Emery, Mrs. B. Patriquin, Mrs. H. Jenkins, Mrs. R. W. Thorpe, Mrs. M. Wilkinson, Mrs. R. Ockwell, Mrs. G. E. Sager, Mrs. D. Laird, Mrs. G. J. MacKenzie, Mrs. J. A. M. Beere, Mrs. K. McMurchy, Mrs. A. Harbottle, Mrs. P. Crook, and the Misses Le Royce Martin, Jane Rochford, Donna Chatfield, Shirley Chatfield and Pat McMurchy.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes took great pleasure in showing Mrs. Anna Malik, visiting journalist and commentator from New Delhi, India, the beauties of the "new" Government House on Tuesday afternoon. They are seen here with Mrs. E. Jan Wilson, and from left, president of the Vancouver Island

Branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club. Mrs. Malik returned to the mainland this afternoon. From there she will travel to Hawaii, Hong Kong and Tokyo for a planned rendezvous with her husband. Mrs. Malik has been touring Canada for the past 19 months as the guest of the Canadian Women's Press Club.

Moen-Gibson Vows In St. Mark's Church

The marriage of Diana May Moen, granddaughter of Mrs. L. Williams, 246 Island Highway, to James Earl Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Gibson, 4561 West Saanich Road, took place recently in St. Mark's Church with Canon R. Willis officiating. The altar was decorated with a mixed floral bouquet for the evening ceremony.

The lace bodice of the bride's gown had a scalloped "V" neckline, decorated with mother-of-pearl sequins, and a frothy skirt of white net over taffeta was enhanced with a lace insert.

A chapel-length veil of the same lace was held in place by a headpiece, highlighted by a large drop pearl. Groom's gift to the bride was a three-strand pearl necklace. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis. Her uncle, Victor Williams of Mission City, gave her in marriage.

Gold-printed taffeta gowns were worn by bridesmaids, Miss Vera Mowat and Miss Judy Bowes. They carried bouquets of blue tinted chrysanthemums and white carnations.

Bridesmaids, Miss Linda Ford and Miss Terry Porter, wore dresses of yellow and mauve chiffon over taffeta and carried bouquets of yellow

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Hazelwood "Harry" Brewster celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently with afternoon and evening "at home" parties held at 5412 Alderley Road.

Mr. Brewster came to Victoria half a century ago from Yorkshire, Eng., met the former Miss Frances May Mycock of this city, and the couple were married by Rev. H. A. Collison in St. Michael and All Angels' Church, July, 1911.

The late Mr. Fred Alexander, well known to Victorians, drove the bridal party to "back and pair" to the church, then on to a reception in newly built Royal Oak Hall, where he played the violin for a wedding dance. The young couple left on the midnight boat for their honeymoon.

Many friends who attended the wedding were present to celebrate this anniversary with Mr. and Mrs. Brewster. Among them were Mrs. W. Webster, who presided at the tea table, and Mrs. E. E. Duval of Ladysmith, sister of Mrs. Brewster, with her family.

Mrs. T. Linter, Mrs. T. Raper, cousin of Mr. Brewster, and Mrs. Adin Mycock, sister-in-law of Mrs. Brewster, helped to serve refreshments. Miss Hazel May Brewster assisted her parents in welcoming the guests. There were 50 friends and relatives invited for the occasion.

Floral Theme in Pink and White For Wedding of Sandra Clark

Pink and white gladioli and baby's breath decorated the chapel at HMCS Naden for an afternoon ceremony which united in marriage Sandra Joan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy V. Clark, 503 Admirals Road, and Kenneth Arthur Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Fisher of Dunblane, Sask.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Clark wore a ballerina length gown of white satin brocade made by the bride and her grandmother, Mrs. R. E. McClure. A satin brocade headband held a mist of illusion net. The bride wore a strand of pearls, and carried a bouquet of red rosebuds and white stephanotis.

A gown of pale pink linen was worn by only attendant, Miss Patricia Marie Fisher, sister of the groom. She chose a dainty headdress of pale pink to complement her outfit. Corsage was of pink and white carnations. Acting as best man was David McClure, uncle of the

'Follow Through' Asked On Purchase of Ferries

GANGES—Gulf Islands residents have been urged by Recreation Minister, George Westwood, to "follow through" on the purchase of the Gulf Islands Ferry Co. Ltd.

Speaking here at a meeting of the Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce and Gulf Islands resort owners, he said the B.C. Highway and Toll Authority will try to "sell" the islands to tourists.

"It is the responsibility of local people to help with non-in taking over the Gulf Islands Ferry Co. Ltd. and pointed out that the purchase was announced one year less a day from the time the chamber first presented to the government a brief advocating this move.

It was reported that a baggage table has been installed at the Swartz Bay terminal for the convenience of Gulf Islands residents, and that taxi service is available to take travellers from the smaller ferry to the larger boat.

A special committee has been named to investigate the possibility of issuing a joint publicity folder covering the whole of the Gulf Islands.

Delegates at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. W. Shirley, R. A. Brackett, D. C. Hutton, L. J. Armstrong, N. N. Grimmer, and J. B. Bridge. Pender Island, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Williams, Hubert Peizer, George Siders, Galliano Island, G. V. Dibley, Mayne Island, C. R. Horel, A. W. Wolfe-Milner, and Kelso Wilson, Salt Spring Island.

NURSE U.K.-BOUND
GANGES—Miss Flora Crawford, public health nurse for the Gulf Islands for the past four years, has been replaced by Miss Ruth Clunas, formerly of Kelowna.

Miss Crawford is on her way to England, and will engage in public health work in the Channel Islands.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed, and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Adv.

ABBOTSFORD—A service station operator in this Fraser Valley farming community is generating his own electricity after a row with the British Columbia Electric Company.

Harry Flodin told the firm to cut off the power to his station on the Trans-Canada Highway. He set up a 30-kilowatt diesel generator.

Flodin said his battle started when B.C. Electric refused to service his trucks in the area of his station.

"The company won't buy my products so I decided I would darned well stop buying theirs," he said. Flodin let his power bills lapse for three months until they totalled $157.

Then he offered to pay the bills by supplying gasoline, oil and repairs to the company's trucks.

Fred Sterling, Abbotsford district manager for the company, said: "We told him we had commitments with other local firms and that we do not issue contracts in response to threats."

TERRACE—A two-year-old boy was killed in the driveway of his home here Monday when struck by a car driven by his uncle.

The boy's mother said John Christiansen, uncle of Richard Christiansen, failed to see the boy as he backed out of the driveway.

GRAND FORKS—John J. Verigin has been declared spiritual leader of British Columbia's Orthodox Doukhobors.

The announcement was made Tuesday and came following a previously unannounced meeting of 27 Kootenay Doukhobor communities last weekend.

Mr. Verigin's first move as leader was to make a down payment on three parcels of crown land, an apparent start to the solution of a 20-year-old problem.

Magistrate William Evans, considered an expert on all Doukhobor affairs, described the purchase as "a very big step." With Verigin now their leader, they are bound to be influenced by what he does, he said.

Mr. Verigin said of his appointment he would rather be thought of as an honorary chairman of the executive council, than as a leader.

The term "leader" would imply that he was a replacement for Jesus Christ, he explained.

Verigin's election was still to be ratified by the sect's rank and file.

PRINCE GEORGE—The Prince George Labor Council has appealed to Premier Bennett to discuss means of easing unemployment at a special session of the B.C. Legislature starting Aug. 1. "The provincial government can greatly relieve this growing problem by planning and preparing projects to put people to work," said council president Jacob Roist.

FIRST ROBBERY ON HORNBY; THIEVES ESCAPE BY BOAT

HORNBY ISLAND—First major theft in the history of the island occurred here overnight Tuesday when thieves made a $700 raid on the co-operative store here.

It is believed those responsible escaped by boat from Tribune Bay.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there anything you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other interesting prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions for adults to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngsters who ask the first question, answered each day receive a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Randy Cullinan, age 14, of Richmond, Va., for his question:

What is fiber glass?

New plastic materials are being created all the time. And lately we tend to reserve the word plastics for such modern materials as polyethylene, nylon and styrene. But in a wider sense, the word plastics can be applied to any man-made substance which can be moulded into shape. In this sense, glass is a plastic which has been in use for thousands of years. What's more, our modern chemists are adapting glass to new uses, and when we look around we find that one of the oldest of plastics is holding its own with some of the very newest. A modern manufacturer may have recipes for making 30,000 to 40,000 different types of glass for different uses.

The windshield on a car is usually laminated, or safety glass. It is a sandwich of thin plastic between two sheets of glass. When shattered by a blow, the splinters stay put. The side doors of a car are often tempered glass, five times harder than a window pane. In the kitchen you may have glass pots for cooking or one of those new glass trays for warming food. You may have tableware of clear glass, colored glass or milky opal glass.

All the light bulbs in the home, plus the radio and TV tubes are made with thin glass tubes. The pipes and walls may be insulated with hard glass foam, light enough to float like cork and easy to shape with a saw. Lenses and spectacles are made of optical glass which is as brilliant as a gem. Also in the home, you may have handsome curtains made from fibre glass.

These different types of glass, each with its own purpose, are all made from slightly different recipes. The basic ingredients for making glass, however, are the same in all cases. They are sand, lime, and an alkali chemical such as soda.

The flawed ones removed and the perfect ones sent back to be remelted in a furnace. The newly heated glass is pushed through tiny holes and comes out in fine filaments. As the filaments emerge, they may be blown into shirt strips by a jet of air. Or they may be twisted into threads by two and three.

The fibres are then coated with a starchy chemical and sent to the textile mill to be woven into fabric called fibre glass. Fabric made from the short fibres looks somewhat like cotton. Fabric made from the long threads looks like silk or rayon. In either case, the fibre glass material will have all the good qualities of glass. It will not rust or rot. It will not absorb water and acids cannot stain it. Best of all—fire will not burn it.

Materials Cheap, Plentiful

These three raw materials are cheap and plentiful. But to make glass, they must be heated to thousands of degrees in special furnaces. And almost every recipe has a trace or two of certain ingredients which are not so easy to come by.

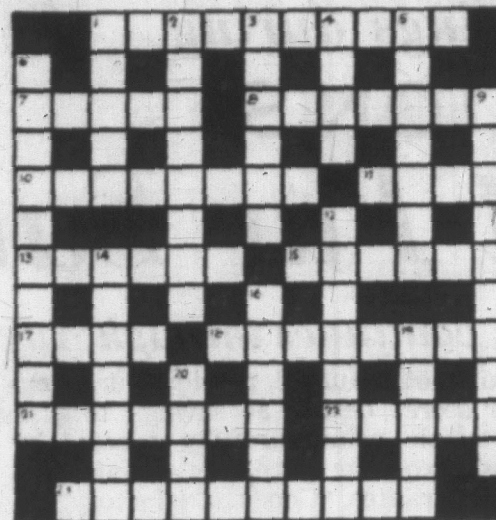

When it comes from the furnace glass is a hot, syrupy fluid. In this state it can be moulded, blown or pressed into shape. A batch of glass destined to become fibre glass is first made into a host of small round balls. When hard, these little glass marbles are sorted.

Nkrumah Runs Radio

ACCRA (Reuters) — President Kwame Nkrumah will take over direct supervision of Ghana's broadcasting system, which recently launched the first phase of an Africa-wide external broadcasting program.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Dorothy La-mour says, "I haven't walked out on Bing and Bob—and I hope they haven't walked out on me."

But she's hurt that her role with Crosby and Hope in "The Road to Hong Kong" is so small she must refuse it, for, she says: "I have exactly four lines of dialogue—39 words. And when I sing, their make-up is melting off, police are chasing them, and fish are jumping out of their clothes."

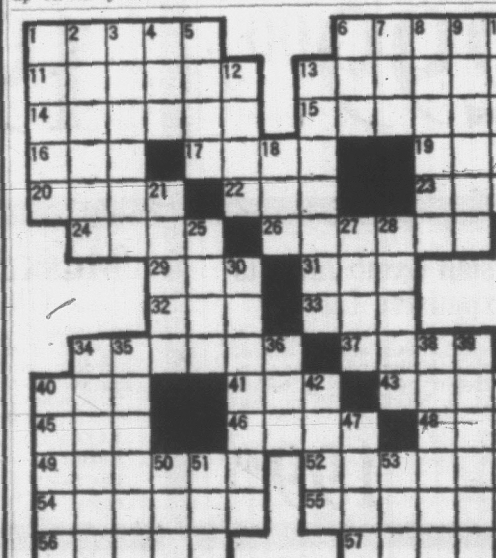

Dotty's dejected, too, that she'd get only fourth billing. "I knew they'd want a younger romantic lead (Joan Collins) but I don't want a part that'll make people say 'Oh, the poor thing'."

The Sarong Girl hopes that when Bob and Bing meet in London, all will be corrected, and she'll be able to hit "The Road" again.

Western Allies Applaud Strong Kennedy Stand

Boosts Forces But Offers To Negotiate

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy has decided to sharpen and strengthen U.S. military forces with a request for an additional $3,247,000,000 defence outlay this year while calling on North Atlantic partners to increase their own fighting power to meet the possibility of a showdown over Berlin.

Congress Promises Fast Action

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy asked Congress today for authority to call up 250,000 ready reserves for a year of active duty and to extend draft terms, enlistments and all other military duty by 12 months.

The requested authority was contained in a series of messages in which Kennedy also asked for an additional $3.5 billion to build U.S. strength.

Democratic and Republican congressional leaders promised today to approve the program by next Tuesday as a show of united backing for a tough U.S. stand on Berlin.

Some lawmakers warned that the program to increase military forces and buy weapons would lead to higher taxes on all Americans.

But Republicans and Democrats alike hailed Kennedy's "fight-if-we-must" warning to the Russians that the west will not be forced out of Communist-encircled Berlin.

Senate Democratic whip Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., said the multi-billion-dollar request to build U.S. defences would be approved either Saturday or Monday.

At the same time, in a 30-minute broadcast Tuesday night, Kennedy hinted willingness to go to the summit with Soviet Premier Khrushchev to find some peaceful solution to the Berlin crisis—as long as the freedom of that Communist-encircled city is not compromised.

Expressing determination not to budge an inch in Berlin, Kennedy said he is willing to consider any arrangement or treaty in Germany "consistent with the maintenance of peace and freedom and with the legitimate security interests of all nations."

RECOGNIZE CONCERNS

"We recognize the Soviet Union's historical concerns about their security in central and eastern Europe, after a series of ravaging invasions, and we believe arrangements can be worked out which will help to meet those concerns and make it possible for both security and freedom to exist in this troubled area."

In short, while we are ready to defend our interests, we shall also be ready to search for peace—in quiet exploratory talks—in formal or informal meetings. We do not want military considerations to dominate the thinking of either East or West."

Saying "we do not want to fight—but we have fought before," Kennedy recalled that others have "made the same dangerous mistake of assuming that the West was too selfish and too soft and too divided to resist invasions of freedom in other lands."

He asked Congress for funds to increase the American 2,500,000-man active forces with an additional 17,000 men. This will bring the 14-division active army to 1,000,000 men and will add 29,000 to the navy and 63,000 to the air force.

KEEP BOMBERS FLYING

Besides the draft call step-up a number of reserve transport and tactical air squadrons are to be made active. Bombers heading for mothballs are to be kept flying to make sure the United States has enough transport in the event that troops must be flown overseas in a hurry. Meanwhile, Continued on Page 2

Ex-Lumumba Aide Elected

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—The Congolese parliament has re-elected a supporter of slain premier Patrice Lumumba as chairman of the Chamber of Deputies. It was announced today.

A United Nations spokesman made the announcement as he reported the parliament has held its "first effective meeting" electing its speakers and officers.

He said Joseph Kasonga, a leading member of the Lumumbist Movement National Congolais, was re-elected president of the Chamber of Deputies and Victor Komoriko was named president of the Senate.

'Excuse To Justify Arms Race'

MOSCOW (UPI)—The official Soviet Tass News Agency, in the first Russian comment on President Kennedy's speech, today called it "an excuse to justify the arms race."

"The president chose in the first place the so-called 'threat to West Berlin'—allegedly coming from the Soviet Union," Tass said.

To support the Soviet charge that the United States started a new arms race, Tass quoted Kennedy as telling the American people: "The new preparations that we shall make to defend peace are part of the long-term build-up in our strength which has been under way since January."

Tass reported that Kennedy tried to ascribe the stepping up of U.S. military preparations as a reaction to the Soviet stand on Berlin and the increase in Moscow's military spending.

It added, however, that Kennedy "himself admitted that the United States itself started the build-up of its military strength much earlier—immediately after his inauguration as president."

Keep Talking Says John D.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—It is essential that no nation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization acts on its own in the Berlin crisis, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said here today.

The prime minister said negotiations over Berlin must continue and that no avenue should be left unexplored.

"As a member of NATO, Canada feels the freedom of Berlin must be maintained," he said.

Referring to President Kennedy's proposal to increase the United States defence budget, he said Canada has always met its commitments and will continue to do so.

Defence Hike Pleases Bonn

LONDON (CP)—The West today hailed President Kennedy's determined stand over Berlin in his address Tuesday night.

In Paris, official circles said they were glad the president combined his stiff warning to Russia with a declaration of readiness to talk over means to lessen world tension.

Government circles in Bonn were particularly happy about the president's proposals to increase American military manpower and military spending.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer expressed satisfaction with the speech before leaving Bonn by air for a 10-day holiday in Italy.

He told reporters at the airport: "I welcome United States leadership."

The West German circles said the speech would undoubtedly increase a measure of uncertainty which they said has developed in Russia because of the firm allied stand on Berlin.

SPEECH SERIOUS

In West Berlin, deputy mayor Franz Amrehn said he was convinced the Kremlin would understand "the deep seriousness and responsibility" of the language in the speech.

In The Hague, the Protestant newspaper Trouw in an editorial on the new defence expenditures said: "The freedom of West Berlin is also our freedom, and that must be worthwhile paying for."

The liberal Le Matin of Antwerp, Belgium, commented:

"This speech means above all that the United States wants to fully assume its duties as leader of the Western World. Kennedy clearly expressed the American determination to take the diplomatic initiative back from the U.S.S.R."

The official Communist East German news agency, ADN, said Kennedy deliberately distorted Soviet proposals for relieving the Berlin tension.

ADN added: "He also failed totally to mention the danger to the peace of Europe posed by West German militarism."

WON'T WELSH

Support From U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Britain today supported President Kennedy's stand on Berlin and Germany and warned the Soviet Union against moves which would inflame that problem further.

A government statement said Britain agreed with the United States that contingency steps must be taken by the Western powers "to face the critical situation which may arise" in divided Berlin.

The statement pointed out that Britain is having trouble financing her troops stationed in West Germany but intends to live up fully to her NATO obligations.

It noted that Kennedy spoke of the possibility of big power negotiations on Berlin and said the British government agrees with this approach "provided always that the Soviet government are ready to do this on a reasonable basis."

Reds Check Expressway

BERLIN (Reuters)—East German police have set up for the first time an internal traffic control point on the Hamburg-Berlin interzonal expressway, it was reported today.

NO 'JAMMING' OF SPEECH BY RUSSIANS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Voice of America reported today there has been no Soviet "jamming" of its broadcasts of President Kennedy's Berlin speech in the English and Russian languages.

However, a spokesman noted that the Russians have "jammed" broadcasts of the message in other languages, particularly to Iron Curtain areas such as Latvia and Armenia.

Kennedy's speech was broadcast live to Europe, the Far East, South Asia and Latin America Tuesday night. It was rebroadcast an hour later by tape to Africa and the Near East.

Throughout today, news broadcasts in 34 foreign languages carried excerpts of his speech.

U.K. PAPERS LASH OUT

'Soak the People' Austerity Plan Hit

LONDON (Reuters)—British newspapers today lashed out at Britain's new austerity program as inadequate, unfair and unimaginative.

Yuri Delays Canada Visit

HALIFAX (CP)—The visit to Nova Scotia of Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin has been postponed until next week. An announcement today from Province House, seat of the provincial government, said the first man to circle the world in space will spend Aug. 23 in this province.

He had been scheduled to come here Friday, July 28, as a guest of industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

An informed source said the postponement was made at the request of Soviet authorities to allow Gagarin time to visit Brazil before coming to Nova Scotia.

He now is in Cuba for celebration of the eighth anniversary of the Castro-led revolution.

Richards to Resign

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Richards will resign as manager of Baltimore Orioles of the American League at the end of this season to become the general manager of the new Houston club of the National League. The Associated Press learned today.

Most British newspapers were angry about the small-scale program put forth in the House of Commons Tuesday by treasury chief Selwyn Lloyd.

The plan boosted the bank rate from five to seven percent, increased sales and excise taxes, tightened credit and cut back estimates of government spending.

The Times of London took a kinder view than most newspapers. It said Lloyd analyzed the situation correctly but failed to come up with a comprehensive plan to get the country back on the road to economic health.

FAILS IN WAGES

The Guardian of Manchester said Lloyd failed most notably in the area of wages.

Following Tuesday's budget and the one put forth last April, The Guardian said, it would be "astonishing" to expect no demands for wage raises to be forthcoming.

"Once again there have been substantial tax concessions for the wealthy to be followed by tax increases and other burdens which fall on the less wealthy," The Guardian said.

The London Daily Mirror, which leans to the opposition Labor party, said Lloyd's measures "contribute nothing toward ending the real causes of our economic crisis."

The Financial Times said Lloyd's plan is confusing.

"It is not clear whether the

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The FBI today identified the gunman who hijacked an Eastern Airlines plane to Havana Monday as Wilfredo Roman Oquendo, a 36-year-old Miami waiter, who was a member of Premier Fidel Castro's revolutionary movement.

The FBI said Oquendo, who used the name Jose Marin when he purchased an Eastern Airlines ticket, was also a past member of the Cuba secret police.

Fulton Fouling Talks—Bonner

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today attacked Federal Justice Minister David Fulton for making what he called emotional and provocative statements about the Columbia River power scheme.

Mr. Bonner said the tone of Mr. Fulton's Vancouver press conference Tuesday was detrimental to private negotiations on financing the project between Premier Bennett and Federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming.

The attorney general, first B.C. government spokesman to give a reaction to the Fulton conference, also upheld the principle of selling power to the U.S.

CUT OFF REST

Ottawa is flatly opposed to selling the downstream benefits from the Columbia, Mr. Fulton said Tuesday.

"If we don't want the Americans to have energy, we should cut off our oil, our gas and any other items which can be converted to electricity," said Mr. Bonner.

"It must be extremely difficult," he continued, "for

PIGEON PRANK REVEALED

Well! Boys Will Be Boys

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The pigeon was muddy and battered. Attached to his leg was a message:

"Help. Trapped in a well behind cement factory. Help. Help."

The pigeon turned up Monday night on the back porch of a home here.

Police went into immediate action, starting a two-stage search for such a well. They worked all day Tuesday on the case.

Then, about bedtime, two 13-year-old Las Vegas boys approached their parents and timidly told of finding a sickly black pigeon in a tree. They said they named him Sam and

At one point, they said they tossed Sam into the air—and he flew away.

PM PREOCCUPIED BY BERLIN

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—The Berlin crisis seemed to have paid an unscheduled visit to the back of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's mind as he referred to the subject and world peace in brief speeches at Stratford, Monday night, and at St. Marys, Mr. Diefenbaker placed on the grave a bouquet of red roses which had been presented to her at the funeral.

At Listowel Mr. Diefenbaker told a crowd of about 1,000 in the town's arena. "It is only 16 years since the war concluded, and it is only 16 weeks from now until the world will face its greatest challenge."

"I hope that there will be a settlement of the Berlin crisis and that there will be peace for this generation and for future generations."

He said he hopes that by the time Canada celebrates her centenary in 1967 new provinces will have been added in the north, "and that we may hope for the final culmination of the Canadian Confederation."

HOPES FOR PEACE

At Moncton he again expressed a hope that there will be peace, "without which we cannot achieve the Canadian destiny. . . I wonder how long we will be able to achieve that peace."

During a brief stop at Mitchell he told a crowd at the airport that "if democracy is to be preserved, it will only be through the service given by men and women to their country by public service."

And at Sebringville he remarked that if negotiations can give peace to the world, then "these youngsters will live in a world we cannot even comprehend."

HILLS TELLS NEWSPAPER GROUP

Canada Too Critical of U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadians should be less violent in criticism of American policies, a Victoria minister told delegates to the American Newspaper Guild convention here Tuesday night.

Rev. William Hills, outspoken rector of St. George's Anglican Church, Cadboro Bay, said Canadians and Americans are partners and there is not much Canadians can do about it.

Canadians, he said, should appreciate that the U.S. for the first time in history now is not able to stand aloof from world politics as it did before the two past wars.

"After all, the U.S. hasn't had as long to work on foreign policies as have the British," he said.

Mr. Hills warned, however, against a one-sided partnership in which Canada would be a satellite of the U.S.

Mr. Hills said there are about four events that have thrown the world into confusion—the breakdown of British imperialism resulting in nationalistic squabbles like those of Africa; the availability of atomic power for weapons; the emergence of the U.S. into world politics and the rise of Russian imperialism—commonly called international Communism.

MONTE ROBERTS

From a safe and semi-recumbent shore-side position the other day, I watched with great interest as a young fellow-cavort about on a pair of water-skis.

He was skimming along at what, to me, seemed an unconscionable rate of speed, swinging wide and banking happily behind a well-handled outboard.

I was happy to note the boat was not only manned by a driver, who kept his eyes ahead, but by a sort of co-pilot, who rode facing the stern, keeping watch over the skier.

I was getting quite a bit of vicarious enjoyment from this little waterfront show, when a sort of nagging feeling crept into my cranium.

Had I, as the delightful cartoon panel which appears daily in this paper suggests, been born 30 years too soon?

In the days when I used to amuse myself in, on, and over the water, skis were far in the future.

We used to ride, on occasion, aquaplanes, which were nothing more than clumsy adaptations of the surfboard, and if we achieved a rousing 15 knots behind a cranky outboard, it was something to dream about.

How much more fun, I thought, for the water-minded young fellow of today—the extra speed and grace of the narrow boards, the added satisfaction of feeling the ropes thro' directly into the yoke held by your own two hands...

And then I thought about what I had missed because my swimming days were ended before even the most rudimentary skidding equipment came along.

A game of underwater follow-the-leader could last only as long as your breath; you could see bare inches ahead through eyes unprotected by goggles; nobody (at least nobody I knew) had ever heard of flippers.

Born 30 years too soon, I missed, as the outboard and the young fellow behind it skimmed away into the distance.

In my time, going skidding simply meant going swimming "skinny," a pleasure enjoyed only in some solitary swimming hole or isolated cove somewhere along the fjord-pocked coast.

Enjoyed, usually, after a few hours of solid paddling in a canoe whose propulsion machinery went "Plop-swish," and the rippling noise under the keel indicated you were speeding along at four or five knots.

Enjoyed just before you up-bottomed the canoe over a pair of logs, spread your blanket roll on the sand, built a cooking fire, and got smoke in your eyes while you made sure there were plenty of grounds in the coffee.

The first faint rays of the sun woke you in the morning, and it was case of perry the morning cook fire to get away while the dawn calm was still on the water, then...

"Plop, swish," and the ripple of water beneath the keel.

Possibly I WAS born 30 years too soon.

Or perhaps the young fellow I was watching was born 30 years too late.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Antique dealer Michael Cotton, 946 Fort Street, told police Tuesday that a grizzly bear trap was stolen from his yard sometime during the last two weeks.

Only description he could give police was that it is a "large" No. 6 trap, valued at $75.

Jack Alexander, whose home at 995 Happy Valley Road was burned to the ground last Saturday night, today expressed thanks to the many people who have helped him and his family.

"We are deeply grateful to those who have contributed money and assistance," Mr. Alexander said.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander and their four children were rendered homeless by the fire. They are now renovating an other home on Happy Valley Road and hope to move in soon.

Screams drove off a would-be assailant Tuesday night when he accosted a woman walking alone on Vancouver Street.

Donna Barker, 1327 Walnut, told police a man had tried to put his arm around her but fled when she screamed.

Thomas William Bligh, of Sooke, and John Houston Reid, 3203 Doncaster Street, were each fined $50 by magistrate Eugene Murphy in Sooke RCMP court Tuesday for consuming liquor in a public place.

Experiment with a plastic aluminum modernistic litter bin has been a success and 10 more will be erected on city streets soon, city planner Roderick Clark said Tuesday.

Colored yellow and topped with a shield to discourage deposit of large bundles of garbage, they will go up in the downtown area.

Richard Allan Parker, 20, of 1971 Oak Bay, was remanded without election to Aug. 1 when he appeared in Saanich police court Tuesday charged with indecent assault.

He is accused of assaulting an 11-year-old girl July 24.

Hans Micksh, 1249 Rockland, suffered lacerations to his right leg Tuesday evening when the motorcycle he was riding north on Cook Street collided with a car turning east onto Fort driven by Alec Baird, 1055 Penrelew Place.

He declined medical aid. The vehicles were not damaged.

Barbara Pearson, 12, of 1530 Jubilee Avenue, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday afternoon after coming into collision with a car as she was crossing Fort at Davie. She received treatment for slight abrasions to her right leg.

Driver of the car proceeded east on Fort was Maurice Fitzgerald, 2716 Dewdney, police said.

St. Joseph's Hospital today reported no change in the condition of 71-year-old Mundi Olafsson Goodmanson, 928 Clarke, victim of a two-car collision at the junction of West Saanich Road and the Patricia Bay Highway, Monday.

He is still in "fair" condition with severe head injuries, broken ribs and undetermined chest injuries.

THING TO DO IN U.K.

Saddling Up By Thousands

By AB KENT

The British motor industry might not agree, but Britons are racing against the automobile in favor of Old Dobbin—a leading English equestrienne said here today.

In the city on a two-day visit demonstrating dressage, Mrs. Sheila Inderwick said horses are more popular than ever in England, where they have always enjoyed a top spot.

"Thousands ride in Britain. Clubs are growing tremendously," she said at Victoria Riding Academy, where she was to give two clinics today and two Thursday in the training of mounts and riders.

REACTION

As in North America, there is a natural reaction against so much auto traffic, and in England even the large oil companies have organized horse riding clubs, Mrs. Inderwick said.

Interest is high among children, especially girls, and Mrs. Inderwick, senior judge and member of the British Horse Society's dressage committee, deals with many of them.

"They are receptive and have the courage," often lacking in adults, she said.

IMPRESSED

In a brief stop at Calgary Mrs. Inderwick was impressed with the young riders she saw.

She is in B.C. at the invitation of horse enthusiasts and will judge a show at Haney before her return to England at the end of a fortnight in Canada, her first trip abroad for training purposes, although she has competed with the British team in Holland.

TO TRAIN

Mrs. Inderwick explained dressage as simply a term taken from the French word "to train," and takes the form of development of a horse's muscles, or physical training. The dictionary extends train-

Sign Law Showdown Indicated

Showdown in a revived controversy over city sign regulations is expected soon.

Mayor Percy Scourah today announced he will order convening of a special committee headed by Ald. J. L. W. Maclean which steered the new sign bylaw through council last fall.

"I hope they can meet in the next day or so and I definitely want the press to be present at the meeting," he said.

The mayor's statement was the only announcement following a one-hour interview obtained by a delegation of sign company representatives this morning.

It was believed they submitted strong complaints over public statements by city planner Roderick Clark pointing out that a promise of early removal of billboards had not been carried out.

Flower-Lover Wills Home To Park Group

All her life Mrs. Evelyn Butterfield loved wild flowers—and this love has survived her death.

In her will probated today, Mrs. Butterfield directed that her house and 13 acres of flower gardens at 1184 Mount Newton Cross Road, Saanich, shall eventually go to Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association.

"It is my fervent hope," she wrote, "that the said association will to the best of its ability continue to protect the wild flowers growing thereon."

DIED IN MAY

Mrs. Butterfield, a life-long resident of Victoria and a devoted gardener, died here last May 29 at the age of 75. She left estate of the gross value of $45,056 to her daughter, Miss Hilda Dorothy Butterfield, directing that the house and gardens should eventually go to the Thetis Park Association.

In the will, Mrs. Butterfield stated that "for many years my daughter and I have protected and propagated the native wild flowers growing on my property... in an effort to preserve them from destruction and possible extinction."

SCHOLARSHIPS

Mrs. Butterfield willed the residue of her estate to Victoria College for the founding of "one or more" scholarships to be known as the Butterfield Scholarships.

She directed that half the income from the estate should be used to help students engaged in medical and scientific studies; one-quarter to students of music and one-quarter to art students.

Miss M. C. Melburn, secretary of Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, said Mrs. Butterfield was devoted to gardens and wild flowers.

"We are deeply grateful for her kind thought of us and will certainly respect her wishes."

The Thetis Park association was founded in 1957. Edward Lohbrunner is president.

Talks are set to deal with a request from the school board for Fireman's Park, adjoining Oak Bay's combined police-fire hall, in order to build a new four-room school able to handle an expected 150-pupil increase in enrolment by the fall of 1962.

Councillors have been opposed because the land is earmarked for a community recreation centre, and is the only suitably-located land which remains undeveloped.

Trustees have considered adding to existing elementary schools, but this would be more expensive and would sacrifice playground areas at the two major schools Willows and Monterey.

A quantity of explosives was stolen from the works site of Helmeton Road underpass, Colwood RCMP reported Tuesday.

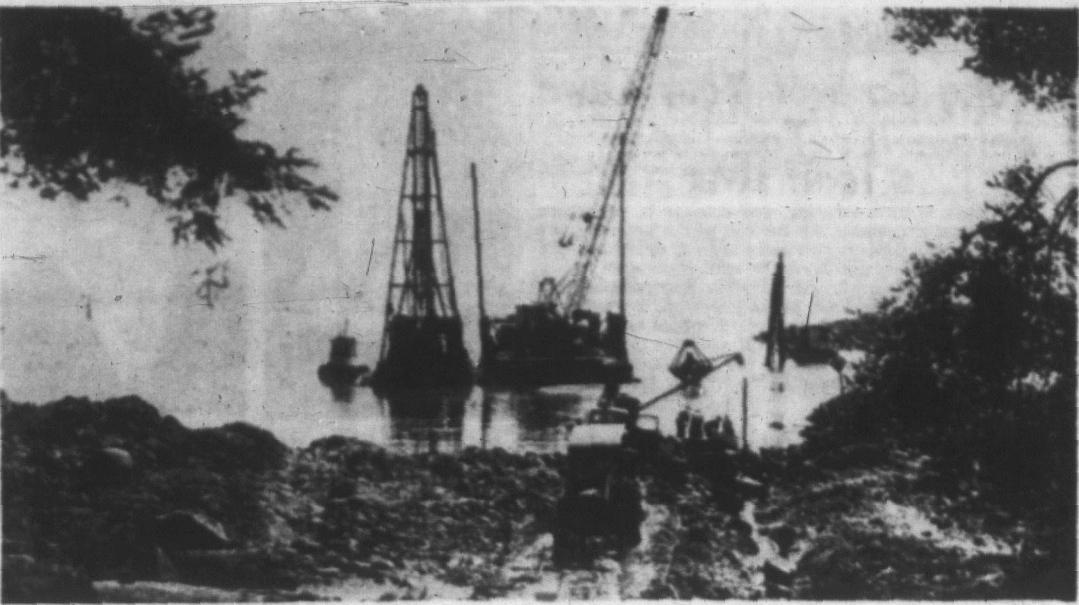

A total of 25 pounds of blasting sticks made up of 40 per cent forfeit was taken from a locked shed on the site.

Ken Nelson, 1263 Grant, told police there was a prowler at his address about 1:35 a.m. today. He said the man was about six feet tall, wearing a light-colored jacket and dark pants. Police searched the area without result.

A test of the aircraft rescue capabilities of the weather ship CMS Stonetown will be carried out between 4 and 8 p.m. Thursday about six miles south of Ogden Point.

An RCAF Albatross will declare a state of emergency, home in on Stonetown's radar and "ditch" in a sea lane marked with dye markers by the weather ship.

Flares and other illuminations will be fired during the exercise.

Scenic Setting for Saanich Sewer

Scenic setting for this work party seems appropriate because the dredges and workmen of Vancouver Pile Driving will help make Saanich "sweeter."

Times photographer took picture at the end of Monarch Road where the company has begun construction of a $136,000 sewer outfall to serve the Gordon Head-Shelbourne sewer line which will eliminate septic tanks and open ditches in the heavily-populated area. Outfall will be completed this year so that homes can connect to sewer early in 1962.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1961—PAGE 17

21 DAYS WITHOUT A DROP

A bit of cloudiness is expected here Thursday, according to the weatherman, but there will be no rain to mar the current stretch of 21 days without precipitation.

A weather disturbance now giving cloud to the weathering will be responsible, he said. There also will be early morning fog along the shore.

Last rain here was July 5, when there was a fall of .28 inch. Prior to that time there had been .01 inch June 28 and 29, and the only rain of consequence before that was .13 inch June 10.

Minimum temperature tonight will be 35 degrees, and the maximum Thursday, 70 degrees, with light southeast winds.

Forecaster for the next three weeks will be Allan McQuarrie of Calgary, replacing Victoria weatherman William Mackie, who is having a vacation.

City Man Accused In Reserve Blaze

A Victoria man was scheduled to appear in Colwood police court this afternoon to face a charge of starting a fire Saturday on Songhees Indian Reserve.

On Tuesday James Norman Galbraith, 3080 Cedar Hill Road, appearing in Sooke police court, admitted dumping cigarette butts from his car Saturday while driving through East Sooke.

RCMP officers saw the butts leave the car, then stopped their car and extinguished them. Galbraith said he did not smoke, but that the cigarettes belonged to his passengers.

Magistrate Eugene Murphy fined him $50, and gave him a lecture on the fire danger in the area.

"You were aware the police car was behind you," he said. "This almost seemed to flaunt the regulations. You're lucky you're not a smoker. This would have cost you more."

HAZARD UP

An already high fire hazard in the trouble-plagued Sooke and Langford areas is going higher, according to B.C. Forest Service officials, but all fires in the area are under control.

Largest of these, which burned over about 90 acres on Gillespie Road north of Roche Cove, has 66 men on patrol to extinguish "hot spots." There are 20 men on the Millstream Road fire, which also is under control and being mopped up.

The whole of Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island, has 21 fires burning and 400 men at work. Kamloops has 81 fires burning, and all under control; Nelson has 32 fires, all under control; and Prince George has 18 fires, all under control.

REMARKED

Councillors have been opposed because the land is earmarked for a community recreation centre, and is the only suitably-located land which remains undeveloped.

Trustees have considered adding to existing elementary schools, but this would be more expensive and would sacrifice playground areas at the two major schools Willows and Monterey.

A quantity of explosives was stolen from the works site of Helmeton Road underpass, Colwood RCMP reported Tuesday.

VHS Student Tops District

William Frederick Hubbard, a 17-year-old student of Victoria High School, won the highest standing in School District 61 in the recent Grade 12 government examinations, it was announced today.

His 91.5 average mark places him seventh in the province.

Accruing to him are awards totalling nearly $700—and one dinner.

The cash awards go with the standing—$500 for being first in the area from the Chris Spencer Foundation; and half of a year's university fees from the provincial government for having achieved a first class standing, that is, 80 per cent or better.

TAKE HIM UP

The dinner comes about courtesy of Stanley Murphy, who is an English teacher at Victoria High School as well as being a Saanich councillor. He offered his student a dinner at the Empress Hotel if he won a scholarship, and Bill plans to take him up on it.

Bill will be entering Victoria College in the fall to study biology and English. He lives with his parents at 2915 Harriet Road.

Highest student in Area 13, which covers all of Vancouver Island except the Victoria district, was Christopher Jo Brealey of Campbell River Junior-Senior High School, who had an average of 90.875 per cent.

SILVER MEDAL

Governor-General's silver medal for top standing in the province went to Robert Gordon of Prince Rupert, whose average mark was 95.625. Right behind him, with second-highest marks, was Timothy Padmore of Vancouver with 95.5.

This is only the fifth time in 13 years that the Victoria area has not had the top student in the province. Silver medalists came from Victoria High School six times in the last 12 years.

All candidates who wrote the government examinations in June will be notified of their results in the mail, probably by Saturday, according to officials of the department of education.

This means that all those who wrote the examinations in the hope of receiving government scholarships which would pay part of their university fees will be notified of their standing when they receive their marks in the mail.

The objections were raised by Victoria groups, including the conservation council, on the grounds that docks, shipping and shore gear would be an eyesore.

"I conveyed the objections to the minister," said Mr. Chatterton. "And I believe too much criticism might lose the project to Vancouver."

Mayor Percy Scourah of Victoria expressed complete agreement with Reeve Chatterton.

"He is absolutely right in saying we might lose the project," the mayor said.

"We managed to get consideration for it only after terrific pressure. I know Vancouver is going after it."

Magistrate William Oester imposed a $250 fine and the driving ban on Halladay for impaired driving and $25 for driving without a licence.

Police said Halladay's car was seen Tuesday evening stopped at the traffic lights at Humboldt and Government. It backed into a car and then, when the lights changed to green, swerved across the road and struck the curb, where it stopped.

4-Month Suspension, $275 in Fines For Impaired Driver

John H. Halladay, 433 Superior Street, was fined a total of $275 and banned from driving anywhere in Canada for four months after he pleaded guilty in city police court today to impaired driving and driving without a driver's licence.

Dock Project Warning Given Critics

Establishment of a marine services building and dock in the Inner Harbor area could be a definite asset and "complimentary" to the appearance of the harbor.

This is the personal opinion of Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich who, as chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board, conveyed objections to the plan to Transport Minister Leon Balcer.

The objections were raised by Victoria groups, including the conservation council, on the grounds that docks, shipping and shore gear would be an eyesore.

Yankees' Blanchard Ties Homer Mark

NEW YORK (AP)—John Blanchard of New York Yankees tied the major league record of four homers in four consecutive appearances, at the plate today by cracking one each in the first and fourth innings in a game against Chicago White Sox. He got the first two as a pinch-hitter in Boston last weekend.

Blanchard now has 13 for the season.

Outboard Explodes; No Survivors Seen

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 16-foot outboard boat sank today after it exploded and burned off the mouth of the Fraser River.

Rescue planes and ships failed to find any trace of survivors.

Eyewitnesses on vessels in the vicinity said they doubted if any persons aboard could have survived the violent explosion.

Vancouver Lawyer Accused of Theft

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver lawyer was arrested at his home in suburban Burnaby today and charged with theft and fraud involving $7,170.

Sheldon Haggman, 37, was remanded for one week when he appeared in police court to face the two charges. Police said the charges involve money entrusted to Haggman for investment in mortgages.

Fulton Fouling
Talks—Bonner

Attorney General Robert Bonner today attacked Federal Justice Minister David Fulton for making what he called emotional and provocative statements about the Columbia River power scheme.

Mr. Bonner said the tone of Mr. Fulton's Vancouver press conference Tuesday was detrimental to private negotiations on financing the project between Premier Bennett and Federal Finance Minister Don Fleming.

The attorney general, first B.C. government spokesman to give a reaction to the Fulton conference, also upheld the principle of selling power to the U.S.

CUT OFF REST

Ottawa is flatly opposed to selling the downstream benefits from the Columbia, Mr. Fulton said Tuesday.

"If we don't want the Americans to have energy, we should cut off our oil, our gas and any other items which can be converted to electricity," said Mr. Bonner.

"It must be extremely difficult," he continued, "for Finance Minister Fleming and Premier Bennett to conduct their correspondence on financing when provocative statements are being made from the wings."

NOT EVEN KHRUSHCHEV

He suggested Mr. Fulton was "going out of his way to prejudice" B.C. Ottawa finance negotiations.

"We don't even do this to Khrushchev," said Mr. Bonner. He said he did not personally want to be a party to any deterioration of these negotiations.

His comment on Mr. Fulton's estimate, based on a Montreal firm's study, that Support

From U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Britain today supported President Kennedy's stand on Berlin and Germany and warned the Soviet Union against moves which would inflame that problem further.

A government statement said Britain agreed with the United States that contingency steps must be taken by the Western powers "to face the critical situation which may arise" in divided Berlin.

The statement pointed out that Britain is having trouble financing her troops stationed in West Germany but intends to live up fully to her NATO obligations.

It noted that Kennedy spoke of the possibility of big power negotiations on Berlin and said the British government agrees with this approach "provided always that the Soviet government are ready to do this on a reasonable basis."

'Excuse
To Justify
Arms Race'

MOSCOW (UPI)—The official Soviet Tass News Agency, in the first Russian comment on President Kennedy's speech, today called it "an excuse to justify the arms race."

"The president chose in the first place the so-called threat to West Berlin allegedly coming from the Soviet Union," Tass said.

To support the Soviet charge that the United States started a new arms race, Tass quoted Kennedy as telling the American people: "The new preparations that we shall make to defend peace are part of the long-term build-up in our strength which has been under way since January."

Tass reported that Kennedy tried to ascribe the stepping up of U.S. military preparations as a reaction to the Soviet stand on Berlin and the increase in Moscow's military spending.

It added, however, that Kennedy "himself admitted that the United States itself started the build-up of its military strength much earlier — immediately after his inauguration as president."

Keep Talking
Says John D.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—It is essential that no nation in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization acts on its own in the Berlin crisis, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said here today.

The prime minister said negotiations over Berlin must continue and that no avenue should be left unexplored.

"As a member of NATO, Canada feels the freedom of Berlin must be maintained," he said.

Referring to President Kennedy's proposal to increase the United States defence budget, he said Canada has always met its commitments and will continue to do so.

U.K. PAPERS LASH OUT

'Soak the People'
Austerity Plan Hit

LONDON (Reuters)—British newspapers today lashed out at Britain's new austerity program as inadequate, unfair and unimaginative.

Most British newspapers were angry about the small-scale program put forth in the House of Commons Tuesday by treasury chief Selwyn Lloyd.

The plan boosted the bank rate from five to seven per cent, increased sales and excise taxes, tightened credit and cut back estimates of government spending.

The Times of London took a kinder view than most newspapers. It said Lloyd analyzed the situation correctly but failed to come up with a comprehensive plan to get the country back on the road to economic health.

The Guardian of Manchester said Lloyd failed most notably in the area of wages.

Following Tuesday's budget and the one put forth last April, The Guardian said, it would be "astonishing" to expect no demands for wage raises to be forthcoming.

"Once again there have been substantial tax concessions for the wealthy to be followed by tax increases and other burdens which fall on the less wealthy," The Guardian said.

The London Daily Mirror, which leans to the opposition Labor party, said Lloyd's measures "contribute nothing toward ending the real causes of our economic crisis."

The Financial Times said Lloyd's plan is confusing.

"It is not clear whether the

Stock Market Climbs
On Defence Build-Up

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market scored a sharp rally today in the wake of the United States government's program to pump vast new sums of money into the defence effort.

A wide assortment of issues participated in the advance but the best marks were made by the stocks most closely allied with the defence set-up. Gains ranged from a few cents to more than $1 a share with most utilities.

Rails and oils were well taken but gains generally were small. Motors were quiet along with most utilities.

Special situations up $3 to $4 and more.

Texas Instrument was an outstanding performer and Du Pont gave a good account of itself. Litton Industries, Zenith, Avnet, North American Aviation, U.S. Steel, Jones and Laughlin and Kennecott were among others well up in front.

However, a spokesman noted that the Russians have "jammed" broadcasts of the message in the English and Russian languages.

Kennedy's speech was broadcast live to Europe, the Far East, South Asia and Latin America Tuesday night. It was rebroadcast an hour later by tape to Africa and the Near East.

Draft Speeded
By 12 Months

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy asked Congress today for authority to call up 250,000 ready reserves for a year of active duty and to extend draft terms, enlistments and all other military duty by 12 months.

The requested authority was contained in a series of measures in which Kennedy also asked for an additional $3.5 billion to build U.S. strength.

Democratic and Republican congressional leaders promised today to approve the program by next Tuesday as a show of united backing for a tough U.S. stand on Berlin.

Some lawmakers warned that the program to increase military forces and buy weapons would lead to higher taxes on all Americans.

But Republicans and Democrats alike hailed Kennedy's "fight-if-we-must" warning to the Russians that the west will not be forced out of Communist-encircled Berlin.

Senate Democratic whip Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., said the multi-billion-dollar request would be approved either Saturday or Monday.

Offer Made
To Negotiate

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy has decided to sharpen and strengthen U.S. military forces with a request for an additional $3,247,000,000 defence outlay this year while calling on North Atlantic partners to increase their own fighting power to meet the possibility of a showdown over Berlin.

At the same time, in a 30-minute broadcast Tuesday night, Kennedy hinted willingness to go to the summit with Soviet Premier Khrushchev to find some peaceful solution to the Berlin crisis—as long as the freedom of that Communist-encircled city is not compromised.

Expressing determination not to budge an inch in Berlin, Kennedy said he is willing to consider any arrangement or treaty in Germany "consistent with the maintenance of peace and freedom and with the legitimate security interests of all nations."

"We recognize the Soviet Union's historical concerns about their security in central and eastern Europe, after a series of ravaging invasions, and we believe arrangements can be worked out which will help to meet those concerns and make it possible for both security and freedom to exist in this troubled area."

In short, while we are ready to defend our interests, we shall also be ready to search for peace—in quiet exploratory talks—in formal or informal meetings. We do not want military considerations to dominate the thinking of either East or West."

Saying "we do not want to fight—but we have fought before," Kennedy recalled that others have "made the same dangerous mistake of assuming that the West was too selfish and too soft and too divided to resist invasions of freedom in other lands."

He asked Congress for funds to increase the American 2,500,000-man active forces with an additional 217,000 men. This will bring the 14-division active army to 1,000,000 and will add 29,000 to the navy and 63,000 to the air force.

Besides the draft call step-up a number of reserve transport and tactical air squadrons are to be made active. Bombers heading for mothballs are to be kept flying to make sure the United States has enough transport in the event that troops must be flown overseas in a hurry. Meanwhile,

Western Allies
Applaud Stand

LONDON (CP)—The West today hailed President Kennedy's determined stand over Berlin in his address Tuesday night.

In Paris, official circles said they were glad the president combined his stiff warning to Russia with a declaration of readiness to talk over means to lessen world tension.

Government circles in Bonn were particularly happy about the president's proposals to increase American military manpower and military spending.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer expressed satisfaction with the speech before leaving Bonn by air for a 10-day holiday in Italy.

He told reporters at the airport: "I welcome United States leadership."

The West German circles said the speech would undoubtedly increase a measure of uncertainty which they said has developed in Russia because of the firm allied stand on Berlin.

In West Berlin, deputy mayor Franz Amrehn said he was convinced the Kremlin would understand "the deep seriousness and responsibility" of the language in the speech.

In The Hague, the Protestant newspaper Trouw in an editorial on the new defence expenditures said: "The freedom of West Berlin is also our freedom, and that must be worthwhile paying for."

The liberal Le Matin of Antwerp, Belgium, commented: "This speech means above all that the United States wants to fully assume its duties as leader of the Western World. Kennedy clearly expressed the American determination to take the diplomatic initiative back from the U.S.S.R."

The official Communist East German news agency, ADN, said Kennedy deliberately distorted Soviet proposals for relieving the Berlin tension. ADN added:

"He also failed totally to mention the danger to the peace of Europe posed by West German militarism."
